"YES! I WAS REALLY, TRULY GOOD!" Jennifer Voorhees, 3, makes a strong case, in this friendly interview with a familiar old friend. Fifth Grades to Move to John Witherspoon; Bond Referendum Scheduled for Next April

The school board agreed by a 6-1 vote Tuesday night to move the fifth grades into the middle school. The resolution did not specify any particular year.

The board also voted unanimously to ask the voters in April to approve a bond referendum — amount undetermined so far — for deferred maintenance, energy-saving projects and improvements to athletic and playing fields.

In addition, board members unanimously voted to welcome Michael Mahoney as the new Borough member. He replaces Joel Cooper, who has moved into the Township. Mr. Mahoney will serve until the April elections. The candidate — perhaps Mr. Mahoney himself — who runs for the rest of Mr. Cooper's term will serve the remaining two years.

"Tonight is the culmination of all the work and thinking the whole board has been doing since July, when we lost our half million in minimum aid," said board president Ann McGoldrick. "And NO minimum aid has been restored."

Moving the fifth grade is interwoven with closing one of the three remaining elementary schools, Mrs. McGoldrick explained. If the board had voted not to move the fifth grade, closing a school would become moot.

Nassau St. Beginning to Resemble Wall St. As Banks, Brokers Compete for Funds Here

Imagine for a moment that you are walking down Nassau Street, from St. Paul's Church toward the center of Princeton. You have a few thousand dollars burning a hole in your pocket and you'd like to invest it at the highest prevailing rates. Any takers?

Well, Dean Witter Reynolds on your left can help you out. So can Merrill Lynch on the right. Thanks to the new banking regulations in effect this week, New Jersey National Bank can take care of your money as well. The bank promises that it will even buy and sell stock for you at a substantial discount. Or you can keep walking and get pretty much the same deals from Nassau Savings and Loan, New Jersey S & L, Security Savings, Tucker Anthony and R.L. Day, Paine Webber (down on Witherspoon Street), First National Bank, Princeton Bank and Trust, and Laidlaw, Adams, and Peck.

No one's changing any street signs, but Nassau Street resembles Wall Street more and more these days. How come?

First, the deregulation of the banking industry has opened up the war between banks and stock brokers, and the competitors are rising to the occasion.

Second, the battleground in Princeton — and in most of Central New Jersey, for that matter — is Nassau Street. "Every single bank in the state would love to put a branch on Nassau Street," says Al Martin, manager of the New Jersey National branch here. "Some may have to settle for out on Route 1, but if you're on Nassau Street, then you're in the pilot's seat."

Now you may say you don't have a few thousand dollars burning that proverbial hole. Well, just keep on walking and the financiers will just assume you do. Over at Merrill Lynch, they are looking for honest folks with at least $20,000 to open a cash management account. They walk in off the street all the time, says Bill Grafton, manager of the Princeton office: "It's been very big here. Most people qualify immediately. We get a good cross section, from college students right on up to the wealthiest retired people."

And everyone figures that more high rollers will be strolling down Nassau Street in the future. "We're in the midst of a financial boom," says Peter Thropp, co-manager at Laidlaw Adams.

Mr. Thropp points out that his firm was the only brokerage firm in

Joseph Blanc Rewarded with Council Spot In Highly Political Voting by Democrats

In secret, informal, highly political balloting Thursday night, Borough Council chose Joseph Blanc to succeed Nelson van den Blink and serve the remaining year in her term.

A poll of Council members later disclosed a vote of 4-1 for Mr. Blanc. Mrs. van den Blink was not present.

Five of the six members of Council are Democrats. Since Mrs. van den Blink is a Democrat, state law requires that a Democrat be chosen to fill out the rest of her term. By law, Council must choose that Democrat from a slate of three submitted by the Democratic municipal committee.

Next Tuesday at noon in Borough Hall, Mrs. van den Blink will formally resign her seat. Council will then vote on her successor — presumably Mr. Blanc, in accordance with the straw vote — and the successor will be sworn in.

Mr. Blanc was the municipal committee's first choice, and if it hadn't been for state requirements, would have been the only choice, Democrats say. Irv Urken was second choice and Marc Landis, a junior at Princeton University, third.

Not all Council members will say publicly how they voted. Richard Macgill, a Democrat, and Council's lone hold-out against Mr. Blanc, said:

"I voted for Irv Urken, not because I don't feel that Joe Blanc is not perfectly capable, but Irv has been much more of a public citizen, more active in public affairs and, because of that participation, better qualified to serve on Council."

One Council member who asked not to be identified, said there was "a strong split of feelings" during the 40-minute discussion session.

Robert McChesney says candidly that it was a political vote.

"The Democratic committee overwhelmingly endorsed Joe Blanc and I felt obliged, as a Democrat, to go along.

"Politics, in the sense of the party, was decisive here. Joe had been willing to step in, back in August when the Council candidate (Diana Radcliffe) withdrew, and take on the onerous task of running without great hope of winning.

"Irv Urken was approached in August, also, but he declined. It was not a vote against Irv, but a question of who deserved it more. Competence came first, yes, but service to the party was important, too, and that affected my vote."

Barbara Hill, who ran with Mr. Blanc this fall, believes she knows him better than others on Council because of that relationship. She admires his stance on rent control and development of the CBD, she said, adding,

"He was the clear choice of the municipal committee, and the logical person — under those

School Board

Later Tuesds evening, the board was scheduled to discuss a school closing, and appoint a committee. The six PTO presidents, in a letter to the school board, urged a concentrated effort, and not a "long drawn-out process" in deciding which school to close and how to make the transition work

Without the fifth grade, the middle school will suffer, Mrs McGoldrick warned The school now has 652 pupils, will have 560 next year and 470 the year after that, to a low of 423 in 1985. And "12 kids to a class is not cost-effective," remarked middle school principal William Johnson

In the round of comment before the vote, Dale Madden said "This is one of the most painful decisions I've ever made." Michael Tomalin pointed out that it was moving the fifth grade or abandoning the middle school's structure "We'd be subsidizing the middle school continually, otherwise," he said

"The timing is offensive to me," said Rosemary McGee "I want a long-range plan – will we have another hole to fill in two or three years?"

And Superintendent Paul Houston answered "Yes, when the bubble of enrollment decline hits the high school " But, he added, moving the eighth grade to the high school was not being considered

Harry Levine, who had just made a gloomy budget presentation, said the fifth-grade move, of itself, doesn't solve the problem It's a question, he said, of how to save program, not how to save the middle-school concept And when the vote came, he voted "no "

Responding to parents who have, in past weeks, worried about younger children in the middle school environment, Mrs McGoldrick said the "house" concept had convinced her the move would be all right

In the middle school's "houses," children stay with the same teachers most of the day, rather than moving from class to class.

Wendy Phillips, who said she was in fourth grade at Riverside, told the board "It will be hard to get used to middle school kids – they're older than we are."

"Some are only one year older than you," Mrs McGoldrick told her. "And maybe some kindergarteners and first-graders think you're pretty old and big."

Budget Projections. A first-draft budget shows the schools could indeed keep all three elementary schools and a 6-8 middle school, dropping 11 staff members and only raising taxes three percent

But only if all minimum aid and categorial aid were restored ($580,000) and no capital improvements were made, and the investment program prospered and all rentals were taken except Mercer County's special ed program at Johnson Park

A "reasonable" tax increase of seven percent would still mean a shortage of $400,000 But with a bond referendum, the community could pick up $150,000 in interest earned on money borrowed but not yet spent

This still leaves a shortage of $250,000+.

The bond referendum looks so good financially, Dr Houston said, there might be a problem convincing the public it's really that good.

Mr. Levine warned that financial planning should be "very conservative."

"How do we achieve our goals in an uncertain environment?" he asked "How heavily do we rely on taxpayers? Should we close an elementary school to provide tax relief, or to achieve program?"

Michael Tomalin reminded the board that Princeton's debt was "substantially below" that of comparable districts, and Alleo Grossman added "We've saved a lot of money by not taking care of our physical plant."

Mrs. McGoldrick reported with astonishment an early-morning telephone call from Assemblyman Gerard Naples, with whom the board has exchanged words over state cutbacks

Assemblyman Naples told her that, since the bond referendum was due to financial crisis, perhaps it needn't be passed on by the voters. He'd be willing, he said, to draft legislation to that effect.

CHRISTMAS TREE?

Collins Will Keep. Yes, Collins will keep the big Palmer Square tree that lights up Christmas each year.

The promise came from Collins' vice-president James Harvie at Monday night's Planning Board session, after a suspicious question from board member Richard Henkel.

"If you build the 'lantern' building opposite the post office," Mr. Henkel asked, "what trees will you leave?"

"All that are there now," was the prompt reply from landscape architect Arthur Collins Jr.

Mr. Harvie, a recent encounter with the Boy Scouts vividly in mind, immediately added "... including the Christmas tree."

The Scouts, who have sold trees from Palmer Square for an eternity of Christmases, are now selling them at the Art People Place, and Collins has been criticized for its role in the move. (See "Mailbox," page 14)

The four-and-one-half-hour session still did not reach the end of the hearings. There will be another next Monday at 7:30 in the Valley Road Building.

1800-Foot Lantern. Originally called a "lantern" because it was to be made mostly of glass, brightly lit at night and designed to lead the weary traveler down into Palmer Square, the building has lost some of its beacon-like qualities.

It hasn't been all glass for a long time. That's when it was a splendid 5,000 square feet. Now it is a humble 1,800 square feet, its glass component unknown because the building hasn't been designed yet. But Collins still has faith in it as something that will draw people north, into the Square. (An 1,800-square-foot building, according to Collins, would be about the size of the Nassau Delicatessen, formerly in One Palmer Square.)

"I hate to remove green space — it's something God gave us," Collins' merchandising consultant Douglas Godine told the board, "but only three or four people a day walk across that space. It's under-utilized.

Mr. Godine said Palmer Square merchants report a decline in sales over the last ten years, and have said they want more shops.

"It's our task to make Palmer Square 'the best place', and it isn't that today," he remarked.

The one-story lantern building would have two or three shops, like an ice-cream shop, a cookie store, a fruit-and-nut specialty shop for "inexpensive, impulse buying."

"We're not removing open space," Mr. Godine said, "We're creating excitement by adding a building enjoyable to the public."

But, responded Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley, "we like that open space just BECAUSE not many people use it!"

Mr. Harvie reminded the board that original plans by the late Edgar Palmer, whose Square it is, showed a building on that spot, balancing the post office. He himself, Mr. Harvie admitted, had been concerned about the size and bulk of the original 5,000-square-foot lantern.

The board had asked Collins to reduce it to 3,000. Collins cut it back to 2,600 instead and now it's 1,800. It is not known whether Collins' cutbacks of its flagship building are due to concern about its size, or concern about its cost.

Palmer Square "House." Do Chung, Collins' architect, referred to the "strong sense of 'place' in Palmer Square." Then he led the board on a fanciful tour of the Palmer Square "house," with its gateway lantern, and post-box on the other side, the proposed plaza as a living-room, and houses at the far north as bedrooms.

In a more prosaic vein, he commented that community activities — like Scouts selling Christmas trees — occur only now and then in the open area where the lantern would go, and after 5 p.m. there are

POSTPONED TO JAN.

Trap Rock Zoning Request. Kingston Trap Rock Industries has decided to postpone until sometime in January its appearance before the Franklin Township Planning Board that was scheduled for this Wednesday evening.

The company seeks a zoning change that would permit it to expand its mining operations. The proposed expansion is part of a long range plan that would permit continued mining operations for the next 60 to 80 years and would also convert the site into a water storage reservoir as the mining operations are completed.

According to John Holt of the firm Holt and Ross of Rahway that is handling the public relations aspects of the plan for Kingston Trap Rock, the company requested a postponement in order to have its presentation as complete as possible. Questions were raised in public meetings the company held in November that the company would like to address in its final plan, Mr. Holt said.

The plan calls for closing the portion of Laurel Road that traverses property that is part of the proposed expansion and replacing it with a newly constructed road along the Delaware & Raritan Canal. In the original plans, this road ends at Route 27, and as critics pointed out, trucks would either turn left and labor up the hill to Kingston on their way to Route One, or turn right and come through Princeton.

The company is now looking into continuing their proposed road across Route 27 along a railroad right of way to Ridge Road, or possibly even to Route One. This requires consultation with the Middlesex County transportation authorities as well as the South Brusnwick engineer's office, and the company is waiting to hear from both. Kingston Trap Rock has already received informal approval from the Somerset County transportation authorities for the part of the road that would run along the canal.

In addition, and also in repsonse to questions raised at public meetings, the company plans to confer with the state DOT for an update on the status of the 92 hy-pass. Although plans for 92 have languished for lack of funds, Mr. Holt says that the proposed nickel tax on gas to be alloted to infrastructure might revive it, and if so, the company wants to incorporate the by-pass into its own plans, Mr. Holt said.

Zoned Residential-Agricultural. Kingston Trap Rock Industries master plan hinges on obtaining zoning approval for expanding the company's mining operations. The company has estimated that it will not be able to continue quarrying diabase rock at the present 275-acre site longer than 15 to 20 years.

Franklin Township has also been going through the master plan process for its future, and the Master Plan that was approved by the Franklin Township Planning Board on November 3 reaffirms the residential-agricultural (RA) zoning designation for the Traprock lands on which it wishes to expand. However, the Planning Board proposed a reduction in density because of the impermeable diabase sub-soil from minimum 50,000 to 150,000 square-foot lots.

The zoning change and the relocated and realigned roads sought by Kingston Trap Rock had not been proposed in time for consideration in the Franklin Township Master Plan, but Mr. Holt is not unduly concerned. A municipal master plan takes effect only as its provisions are enacted into ordinances, he points out. Moreover, lands that are mined are taxed at a higher rate than lands that are farmed, he says, resulting in a higher rateable for Franklin Township and a lower tax rate for its residents.

HOME IS LOOTED

Of $5,000 in Jewelry. Assorted jewelry worth approximately $5,000 was stolen early last week from a home on Baker Court, off Dodds Lane.

Township police report that the thief broke a second-story window to gain entry and then ransacked the house. He exited through a door which set off an alarm.

A home on Mercer Road was entered last week by way of an unlocked rear door.

The intruder searched through the house, taking $50 from a dresser, a silver flatware set and jewelry, including bracelets and gold chains. Chief Michael Carnevale reported that police have received an inventory of

Christmas Memory

"...in an effort to help brighten someone's Christmas."

Chapter Four of the P.E.O. Sisterhood has sent a check to the Town Topics Christmas Fund "in memory of one of our longtime members, Dorothy Jones, in an effort to help brighten someone's Christmas."

The check, for $41.50, has been added to the growing number of dollars sent to the Fund by this compassionate Princeton community.

To date, less than two weeks after publication of the Appeal, the Fund total is $3,370. Money contributed to the Fund is distributed by the Family Service Agency of Princeton, and since Town Topics absorbs all administrative expenses, every dollar goes to a needy family, a needy person.

Make your checks payable to: Town Topics Christmas Fund. Send them to Town Topics, Box 664, Princeton, N.J. 08540. All contributions are tax-deductible.

the missing items but not an exact dollar amount. "it will certainly be in the thousands of dollars," he said.

During a ten-minute period last week -- between 5:30 and 5:40 -- a sneak theif entered an unattended, second-floor office on Witherspoon Street and departed with a purse.

Inside were a wallet containing $35, gloves, a pair of eyeglasses, pen, stop watch, and cosmetics with a combined value of $515. The purse and empty wallet were found the next day in the area of Witherspoon and Quarry Streets.

'CAPS' EASED

By One Percent. The lid on municipal operating budgets has been lifted — just a little. And Borough and Township budgets will be helped — just a little.

Enacted six years ago as part of the New Jersey income-tax, the so-called "cap" on budgets has remained at five percent, although inflation has zoomed and soared well beyond that figure, carrying utility, gasoline and insurance costs with it.

Increasingly squeezed by the five percent limit on budgets, municipal officials have been hoping the Legislature would loosen the bands and this week it did. The Assembly voted to raise the cap by one percent, from a five percent limit to six percent.

Township Administrator Joseph R. Nini estimates an additional $38,000 for the 1983 budget.

Borough Administrator Mark Gordon says that if the six percent cap had been in effect for the 1982 budget, the Borough would have had $30,000 more He did not have 1983 estimates.

Changes in the cap law had already been approved by the Senate. Governor Thomas H. Kean has not said whether he will sign the new measure.

THEFT REPORT

Store Office Yields $2,580. A store office on Nassau Street near Pine was entered last week, while the front was unoccupied, and robbed of $580 and $2,000 in jewelry.

Police said while a clerk was in the rear of the store, someone walked behind the counter and removed the money from a cash box and the jewelry from a drawer. Among the approximately $2,000 worth of jewelry items taken were a $650 gold watch, a woman's gold bank and rings.

There were three purse thefts reported by police last week.

An employee of a Nassau Street business (near Chestnut) left her purse unattended for a brief period around closing time at 5:30. During that short span, someone removed $696 from her purse. Police report that the victim, a Trenton resident, had cashed several checks on Friday -- the day of the theft.

An employee of the University Store reported the theft of her purse between 4:30 and 5:30 Friday. Her large, tan purse, hanging on an office wall and vauled at $65, contained $20 and credit cards. The total loss, police report, amounted to $207. The victim is a resident of Pennington.

A Jefferson Road resident, while working at the Off The Rax store in the Princeton Shopping Center on Sunday, had her purse stolen from the store's office. There was no money in the purse but the purse was valued at $16.

During a three-day period last week, a thief entered a basement level office of a Chambers Street store and took $375 from a desk drawer.

Teddy Bear Stolen. An 18-inch, gold teddy bear was stolen last week from a display shelf in a Nassau Street sore -- it carried a $100 price tag -- and a three video games and a video controller worth $141.80 were shoplifted Thursday morning from the Electronic Candy Store in the Princeton Shopping Center. When confronted by the manager, the suspect, a black male in his early 30s, handed the articles back and fled from the store.

More successful was the shoplifter who entered a women's apparel shop on Palmer Square Friday afternoon. Police said that he concealed a woman's white jacket on his person and left without paying, leaving the store with a $198 debit.

A Lambertville construction worker lost four power tools with a combined value of $560 Thursday from a construction site on John Street. Police said that the victim had carried a circular saw, power planer, drill and router out to the street preparatory to putting

Christmas Eve

Carolers, a brass band, a guitar, refreshments and -- Santa Claus.

The annual candle-light Carol Sing will start this year at 5:15 Christmas Eve at the Art People Place, Witherspoon. Carolers will move in procession to the green in front of the Nassau Inn, where they will be joined by a brass band and Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley.

Folk singer Caroline Mosely will lead the singing. Song sheets will be provided, but carolers should take their own candles.

After Santa has made a brief bow from the rooftop, the Nassau Inn will invite everyone inside for free refreshments in front of an open fire.

Bus Cuts Postponed

Influenced — or maybe even cowed — by the 50 people who showed up at the Trenton public hearing, NJ Transit has announced that it will postpone the elimination of bus routes scheduled for January 1.

Included in the 29 cut routes were the Princeton Loop and the Princeton-Quaker Bridge Mall buses. In addition, student discount fares were to have been eliminated.

Jerome C. Premo, NJ Transit director, said the cuts were being delayed to give the agency time to go over comments made by bus riders.

them in his truck and had inadvertently left them there.

Fair to Poor. A snow tire, described in fair to poor condition worth $39, was stolen overnight from a car parked in Spruce Circle lot used by residents of Lloyd Terrace on Harrison Street.

Police said that the thief used a jack to remove the right wheel and then lowered the wheel drum to the pavement. The victim lives in Princeton.

DRUG CHARGE FILED

Against Clay Street Resident. Melvin Miller, 26, of Clay Street has been charged by Borough police with possession of under 25 grams of marijuana.

Police uncovered the drug while Miller was being processed at police headquarters. He had been arrested last week at Nassau and Witherspoon Streets by Ptl. Donald Dawson on a warrant from the Plainsboro Police Department.

Miller was later turned over to Township police after a National Crime Information Center computer check revealed that he was wanted there on $350 bail. Miller was also wanted by Bridgewater Township police on $415 bail and by New Brunswick police on $80 bail. The crime check revealed that he had made his $100 bail in Plainsboro. Police here said that they did not know what the other police charges entailed.

Charged with Trespassing. Thirty-five-year old David Raez, whose last known address was Center Street, Trenton, has been charged with trespassing.

Borough police responded to a 9:43 call Saturday morning from a Nassau Street church where Raez had been granted temporary living quarters. He had been there about a month, police said, and had refused to leave when asked.

He was turned over to the Mercer County Sheriff's Department after a crime check revealed that he was wanted on a contempt of court warrant by that agency for failing to answer a burglary charge.

TWO CARS DAMAGED

In Skidding Accident. A small foreign car was totaled and another car had to be towed following a skidding accident early Saturday morning on Route 206 between Provinceline and Quaker Roads.

According to police, Robert J. Jenkins, 44, of 36 Trafalgar Court, Lawrenceville, was traveling south on 206 a few minutes before Saturday morning when his car skidded on an icy bridge roadway. It struck the bridge wall, skidded around 180 degrees and entered the opposite lane backwards, striking and Intime's Play Effective.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In his review of Peter Handke's "They Are Dying Out," Herbert McAneny has damned undeservedly, I believe, with faint praise – or no praise at all, for that matter - a wonderful and effective production by Theatre Intime. Handke's corrosive satire of corporatist society was stylishly performed, directed with verve, and handsomely mounted. Who could ask for more?

We are fortunate to have the campus productions from Theatre Intime and 185 Nassau Street as antidotes to theatrical humdrum. For the price of a movie ticket, I can witness intelligent and creative theatrical risk (a rare and vanishing commodity), and value apparently missing from your critic's portmanteau.

Idiot's Tale.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

If this reader had been saddled with Mr. McAneny's assignment of reviewing the recent production of Theater Intime, "They Are Dying Out," by Peter Handke, he would have been guided by Shakespeare's admonition that brevity is the soul of wit.

His review would have borrowed another line from the Bard and summarized his reaction with the comment that the play is "A tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

If Theater Intime justifies its selection of Handke's ranting as an experiment, this subscriber to the current series objects to paying admission for the dubious privilege of being a guinea pig. If similar "experiments" will constitute the offerings of Intime, the theater will have to survive without the contributions of this long time supporter.

The writer sympathizes with, and gives credit to the cast which, on the whole, made the most of an impossible script.

Crossing Guard Needed.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I have sent the following letter to the Princeton Regional School Board.

As you may or may not know, a friend of mine got hit by a car on Monday night (5:15) at the corner of Alexander Road and Mercer Street. He is all right, but once is enough for me. I don't want to be the next one hit. (I also don't want another driver to go into shock.)

5:15 p.m. is in the middle of the evening rush hour. 8 a.m. is the morning rush hour and I have to cross Alexander every morning. It is only a bit lighter at 8:00 than it is at 5:15.

How much can it cost to put an extra crossing-guard at Alexander? A child's life? Please listen to me and put a crossing-guard there.

Special thanks, too, to the management of Princetor Community Village and the Princeton Housing Authority for coordinating distribution of the invitations and arranging for additional chaperones.

Another thank-you to Bill Karch, facilities, Princeton Regional Schools, for acting as bus driver, and to Ken Conover for supplying the bus.

The children's enjoyment was best expressed by one child who asked, upon leaving the bus, "Are we going again tomorrow?"

Collins As Scrooge

To the Editor of Town Topics:

What are the sophisticated 'marketing strategies' that have compelled the rash of unneighborly decisions taken at Palmer Square recently?

The Boy Scouts aren't selling Christmas trees on the Green anymore. The Hospital Christmas Boutique was denied use of space at Nassau Inn (No room at the Inn?). On top of this Grinch-like behavior the Square has been torn up just when grandparents are visiting and children are home from college. Strolling and shopping is not as pleasant as it would be without the construction at this busy time of the year.

The people of Princeton Borough, through their elected representatives, have been eager to cooperate with Collins Corporation in their enterprise. There seems to be a generalized attitude in the Borough of "Let's get on with it," and fatigue with the endless questioning of the various plans that have been proposed in the past.

But if this Christmas is an indication of the kind of neighbor the Collins Corporation is going to be, I think we had all better take a long, hard second look at what will be in store for us. Collins Corporation have shown little, if any, interest in long term traditions that are meaningful and important to great numbers of Princeton residents.

Collins Replies.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The Collins Development Corporation would like to clarify why the Boy Scout Troop' Christmas Tree project was not present on the Square this Christmas Season.

Collins was contacted by the Scout Troop in the Fall and it was explained that due to requests from various organization for the use of the square we could not guarantee them, at that time, the specific space they requested and an alternative location was suggested at the corner of Palmer Square East and Hulfish Street for their review.

Collins and the Boy Scout Troop did not have further conversations finalizing this alternative site and we regret the lack of communication as we totally support all Community activities that have been traditionally in Palmer Square and we look forward to working with the Boy Scout Troop next Season on a location in the square for their Christmas Tree sale.

Trenton Roundup

The State Assembly has approved a bill, already passed by the Senate, raising the drinking age in New Jersey from 19 to 21. It will become effective January 1 and Governor Thomas H Kean is scheduled to sign it before that time. The Assembly vote was 48-26.

One of Princeton's representatives — Gerard Naples — voted for the bill; the other, John Watson, voted against it.

Anyone who turns 19 before January 1, will not be affected, but those whose 19th birthday comes after January 1, will have to wait until they are 21.

Although Governor Kean vetoed the bill requiring one minute of silence at the start of each public school day, the Assembly over-rode his veto on Monday by a 57-17 vote. The Senate will vote on the measure this Thursday and is expected to follow the Assembly in over-riding the veto. Mr. Naples and Mr. Watson both voted to over-ride.

A lawsuit has been filed by three State Senators — including Princeton's representative Gerald Stockman — challenging Governor Kean's power to close the Training School for Boys at Skillman. The suit, which has the support of the majority of the Senate, according to Senator Stockman, declares that while Governor Kean has the power to cut the budget, he does not have power to close a facility that was opened by state law.

Fish-eaters were advised this week to limit their consumption of bluefish, white catfish, American eel, white perch and striped bass caught in New Jersey coastal waters. The State Department of Environmental Protection said the fish may be contaminated with traces of PCB — polychlorinated biphenyls — a chemical compound suspected of causing cancer.

A six-year study showed that 75 percent of New Jersey's coastal fish are tainted. The DEP suggested that consumers eat the listed fish only once a week, and pregnant women and nursing mothers not eat them at all. In addition, the DEP advised cooks to remove skin, fat and dark portions of the fish. If this is done, the DEP said, about 50 percent of the danger of PCB can be avoided

"totaling" a 1977 Toyota operated by Alan B. Johnson, 23, of Trenton.

Mr. Jenkins was treated at Princeton Medical Center for contusions and abrasions of the shoulder; Mr. Johnson refused treatment for minor injuries.

There were no charges by Ptl. Virgil Angelini, who noted that the roadway was wet but the bridge surfaces – where conditions change rapidly – were icy.

A few hours later at 3:50, Alexander N. Thomas Jr., 21, of Trenton, ran off the roadway while driving on Princeton-Kingston Road between Snowden and Locust Lanes. His car ran across the lawn at 458 Kingston Road and struck a tree.

Mr. Thomas told Ptl. Renn Kaminski that he had fallen asleep at the wheel and awoke and braked just before striking the tree. Taken to the hospital for treatment of lacerations of the face, he was issued a summons for careless driving.

Elderly Driver Charged. An 84-year old Butler resident, Helen F. Haynes, driving a Rolls Royce, was ticketed for failing to keep right and having no license or registration in her possession after she struck two cars last Wednesday on the Great Road near Stuart Road.

A witness to the accident in another car told Ptl. John Seeley that the Haynes's car was being driven without its headlights on and had crossed over the center line several times. It would first struck a car driven by John Carmichael, 54, of Somerville, who told the officer that he had seen the Rolls heading toward him and had attempted to avoid it hy pulling off the road.

Mrs. Haynes continued on and then struck a second car operated by Tereso A. Liddy, 23, of Philadelphia. The Liddy car, a 1980 Dodge Colt, was a total loss. Police were called at one minute before five.

Part of Mercer Closed

A section of Mercer Road, from Quaker Road to Parkside Drive, will be closed for construction this Wednesday and Thursday between 9 and 4.

Motorists are advised to use Parkside Drive to Quaker Road as their alternate route. The road closing is to permit construction of a sewer hookup which has to go under the street.

2 JUVENILES CHARGED

In Separate Crimes. Two Township juveniles have been charged with criminal offenses in separate incidents.

A 16-year old youth, charged with two counts of theft and two of forgery, has been released to the custody of his mother, pending further action by a juvenile court. According to Juvenile Officer Jerry Offredo, the youth stole two checks and cashed one for $80 and the other for $50 at hanks here. Det. Offredo declined to reveal how the youth obtained the checks.

A 17-yearl old girl was taken to police headquarters for processing, after she alledgedly had shoplifted a pair of gloves from Epstein's and some cosmetics from the Acme Market -- both stores located in the Princeton Shopping Center. She was later released to her father after heing charged with two counts of shoplifting.

DRIVER FINED $515

For Drunken Driving. In Borough traffic court Monday, Edward G. Fitzell, 153 Washington Road, was fined $515 and had his license suspended for two years after being found guilty on his second offense of drunken driving.

Fined $60 each were Barbara Laznovsky, 81 Bertrand Drive; Hilda Kroph, Princeton Arms, Cranbury; Thomas B. Robertson of Harbourton, Brian Janke, 3 Sebring Round, Belle Mead -- all for speeding -- Billy L. Kelley, 24-10 Hunters Glen, Plainsboro, careless driving, and William C. Leigh, 28 Edgerstoune Road, red light.

Chris C. Bauer, 6 Little Brook Drive, paid $20 for improper number of headlights, and $15 for no license or registration in possession. Joanna A. Clark, 73 Wheatsheaf Lane, pleaded guilty to the latter charge with an explanation and was fined $25.

In Township court last week, Mark W. Perry, 67 Marion Road E., fined $90 for speeding, and Peter P. Kemp, 73 Broadripple Drive, $65 for careless driving.

SAFE RIDE HOME

For Teens. You've gone to a party with a new date, somebody you don't really know very well. It's been quite a party with a lot of beer, and by the time you want to go home, your date is so smashed you're afraid to ride with him because you don't want to be smashed, too.

"Safe Rides" will give you a safe ride home. It will also provide a safe ride home for your drunk date.

The new volunteer program, sparked by Mrs. Polly Miller, will go into effect in early January, and a "community night" will be held January 26 at 8 p.m. at the YWCA to talk about the program.

"Safe Rides" is modeled after a successful program in Darien, Connecticut, and it is another example of the impact on Princeton parents and teenagers of the appearance of David Toma last June.

Mr. Toma, a former drug addict and former Newark police officer, talked to over a thousand teen-agers in Jadwin Gym and later went to high schools in the area for more personal counseling. Since his appearance, groups concerned with teen agers have been concentrating on problems of drug and alcohol abuse.

In the "Safe Rides" program, there will be six volunteers -- five teen-agers and an adult -- at a command post in Trinity Church between 10 p.m. and 3 a.m. on Friday and Saturday nights.

Teens who need a ride, either because their driver is drunk or because they themselves feel too drunk to drive, will call the Safe Rides number.

One of the teens will be dispatcher, sending out a two-member team to pick up the caller. The dispatcher will maintain CB contact with each team. An adult volunteer will be present if help is needed. Both Princeton police departments and the First Aid and Rescue Squad have agreed to help if they are called.

Training sessions will begin the second week in January. They will explore attitudes

SENIORS AND GYM

Maybe With PAA. Officers of the Princeton Art Association were scheduled to decide this Tuesday night whether to join the Princeton Senior Citizens Club in shared use of the gym building behind Borough Hall.

Council member Robert McChesney said this week that the two organizations had reached an agreement on how to divide the space and how much the PAA was willing to pay toward operating expenses.

State and county officials have approved this shared use, Mr McChesney said, and approved use of their $50,000 grant to renovate the building The Borough has not touched the money, waiting for this approval of shared use

The Borough is still required by the state and county to provide a director for senior citizen activities if the gym is used as a center Mr McChesney will suggest that the Crosstown 62 co-ordinator move her office to the gym and expand her activities to serve as director

Parking could be in the lot behind "Morven" if the N.J. Historical Society gives permission to the PAA, he said

WINDOWS BROKEN

By Fence Piece. A piece of stockade fence on the property of a Grover Avenue residence was broken off early Saturday morning and hurled through a second-story window, breaking an outside storm window and an interior window. Township police said that no attempt was made to enter the house.

In another act of vandalism in the Township, a trellis valued at $200 and a sliding glass door worth $159 were broken last week. They were part of a building at the Princeton Professional Park construction site on Ewing Street

In the Borough, police report six panes of glass in the front window of a Witherspoon Street restaurant were broken Thursday night.

Pfc. David Alston and Pfc William Nathan had responded to a 11:15 call that an assault was taking place Witnesses told the officers that the driver of a car had gotten out and accosted three pedestrians. A punching and shoving match ensued and one of the combatants had fallen against the window. All had fled by the time police arrived TEST DRIVE A VOLVO. YOU WON'T BE SWAYED EITHER WAY.

Heavy stabilizers front and rear keep Volvo "roll" to a minimum when cornering. Front wheels independently suspended by McPherson struts and rack and pinion steering give you predictable steering control. So when you change lanes at high speed, Volvo goes where you point it.

If your car doesn't handle this well, change direction. And come to our place for a new VOLVO.

WE'LL ASK AGAIN

For Housing Money. Borough officials, undaunted by a first-time rejection (in which the Borough was Number Nine out of 38 applicants), will apply again for Department of Community Affairs and Urban Development Action Grants. Money would go toward purchase of Shirley Court and to repair Maple Terrace public housing.

Council members were scheduled to meet this Wednesday to interview consultants Martha Lamar and Charles Nathanson and to decide which to retain to prepare the applications. Council hopes the chosen consultant will agree to work on a speculation basis; that is, getting paid only if the application is approved.

FILMS FOR CHILDREN

At Public Library. During the school vacation, the Public Library will feature films for children of all ages.

"The Cat from Outer Space" (103 minutes, color) will be shown Wednesday, December 29 at 10:30, and again at 3. This comedy about an extraterrestrial tomcat is suggested for children aged six and older.

"The Red Balloon" (28 minutes, color), a fantasy about a boy who befriends a remarkable balloon, will be shown on Thursday, December 20, at 3:30. Children under the age of five must be accompanied by an adult.

Free tickets for both films are available at the children's desk on a first come, first serve basis.

TOURED SCHEDULED

Of Birth Center. Familyborn, a center for birth and women's health, offers a free tour and orientation to the public on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Children welcome.

DATE ANNOUNCED

For Fantasy Auction. The Association for Advancement of the Mentally Handicapped has launced plans for its second Annual Fantasy Auction with Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist and satirist Art Buchwald again at the helm as auctioneer. The event is scheduled for April 16 at the facilities of Educational Testing Service.

The auction will consist of three parts. There will be a silent auction and cocktail party opening the night's activities, with patrons browsing among hundreds of items and writing down bids. The fantasy auction, with Mr. Buchwald wielding the gavel, will follow, with bids made in typical auction style. A patrons' dinner will follow.

Last year, patrons bid on such exotic offerings as a champagne cruise on a 27-foot sailboat, vacations at resorts or at the homes of prominent people, and lunches, dinners or cocktails with such celebrities as Joanne Woodward, Congresswoman Millicent Fenwick and Lindy Boggs, and a tennis match with pro-star Virginia Wade.

Borough Council

circumstances — to receive the vote."

Mr. Urken said he didn't want to discuss Thursday's vote, but he pointed out that he told Council, during the interviews preceding the vote, why he had not run when asked.

His hardware store was undergoing extensive expansion, he explained. "I would be told by the builder to move stuff out at 4 in the afternoon to be ready by 8 the next morning — that kind of thing. I just didn't have time to campaign."

Each of the three candidates made a brief presentatinn to Council, while the other two waited out of sight and earshot.

Mr. Blanc, a chemical engineer, said he'd majored in economics and had "an educated layman's knowledge." Rent control and traffic are his chief concerns, he said. Asked what Council should be doing, he nsked "Is there o clear concept of what Princeton should be like in 20 years?"

Mr. Urken runs his family's hardware store. As a merchant and resident, he said, he believed he was in touch with the public. He listed for Council several money-raising policies he thought the library and recreation hoard might pursue, and told Council he regarded parking as his first concern.

Mr. Landis (never seriously considered as a contender, Democrats say), pointed out that 5,000 of the Borough's 12,000 residents are students. They are, if not neglected by the Borough, certainly underutilized, he said, and should be drawn more into community life.

Three Questions Asked. Three key questions were asked by Council members:

"What have been your community activities?"

Mr. Blanc: a tutor in the Princeton Study Program and its president for three years; unsuccessful candidate for the school board, president of the Willow Street Association

Mr Urken Planning Board member for almost two years, former head of the Joint Transportation Commission, volunteer fireman, campaign manager for Democrats, unsuccesstul Council candidate in 1976.

"Why do you want this job?"

Mr. Blanc: "Originally, I wouldn't have put myself forward, but the Democrats asked me. I believe I can serve efficiently hut I was pushed in by circumstances."

Mr. Urken: "I couldn't run in the fall, but now I can take the time. I live and work here, I'm interested in how the town runs and I want to be part of it and help make it happen."

The Third Question. "What would you like to do on Council?"

Mr. Blanc: "I'm not sure. I'm going to think about it."

Mr. Urken: "Things connected with the Central Business District, like public works or Park and Shop."

Council Democrats say their vote doesn't mean political death for Mr. Urken.

"I hope he's willing to run again," Mr. McChesney says. "He'd make a very good Council member: he has business contacts, and nobody now on Council has that. This was not a vnte against Irv."

It is not known — and Mr. McChesney said he did not know — whether Mr. Blanc will agree to run in the fall for a full three-year term. If he does, it could mean a primary contest with Mr. Urken.

Political Scheduling. Even the formal vote next Tuesday was a political decision. Mr. McChesney is scheduled to leave December 27 for an extended stay in the Soviet Union. Mrs. van den Blink would have gone off Council on December 31. Without these two on January 1, the vote would probably have been a 2-2 tie between Mr. Blanc and Mr. Urken

Democrats felt sure that Mayor Robert W Cawley would break the tie by voting for Mr Urken So the formal vote was scheduled for December 21.

The ostensible reason, given by Council, is that this date enables Mrs van den Blink to participate, as a Planning Board member, in what everyone hopes will be the vote on Collins' Palmer Square plans town when it opened here in the early 1940's. Since then Trenton's star has dimmed in the world of finance, and firms have settled here rather than there. When Merrill Lynch opened its satellite office five years ago, "that probably lent credibility to Princeton as a financial center," says Mr. Thropp.

Since then Merrill Lynch has tripled its number of account executives in Princeton to 15, even as other brokerage houses set up there shops in town. "As far as I can see," says Mr. Grafton, "all are doing well and that kind of success breeds competition."

Accountants, Advisers. "Princeton is a unique marketplace," says John Hoff, president of First National Bank, who cites the Carnegie and Forrestal developments on Route 1 as evidence of the new business gravitating to this area. Mr. Hoff recalls that "15 years ago there was a somewhat limited number of accounting firms. Today several of the big eight have come into the area, in Lawrence Township. These people seek locations where business is flourishing."

Along with the accountants are the investment advisors. Mr. Thropp of Laidlaw Adams figures that at least 20 to 30 people in Princeton now practice that craft for a living. One of the hottest firms is Oakley Sutton Management Corporation, which occupies the quaint yellow house at the corner of Park and Vandeventer (formerly known as the Beatty house.(They don't even have a sign out front, but big money is made inside.

Laidlaw Adams hopes that it can entice several of these financial number crunchers into its new building now under construction next to Allen's department store. The brokers who have been asked by Collins Development to vacate their space at Palmer Square, will occupy the first

Independent Nassau Savings Sticks To Business It Does Best—Mortgages

At a time when banks and brokers both seem to be turning into financial supermarkets, Nassau Savings and Loan stands out like a butcher shop or a produce market — a relic from another era.

"Supermarkets — that's where a lot of banks want to go," says Walter Foster, president of Nassau Savings. "A lot of places are spreading themselves thin. They're interested in everything except home mortgages. We'll have the money market accounts and we'll be competitive but we plan to continue doing what we do best — the home mortgage."

Nassau wrote $10 million worth of mortgages in 1980, $20 million in 1981, and expects to double that figure again this year.

"We believe we know what we're doing in home finance," says Mr. Foster. "There were about 270 state-chartered savings and loans five years ago and now there are just about half that. Last year we were one of only eleven profitable S & L's. If you want to call me an old relic, fine, but I'm in pretty good company — putting down black ink."

Nassau Savings, headquartered in its own building at 188 Nassau Street, survives as Princeton's only hometown, home managed financial institution. The commercial banks are part of holding companies or branches and Princeton Savings has merged with the Vineland-based Security Savings.

That leaves Nassau Savings, a fact that has not escaped the financial leviathans out of town. "We've been approached by some of the big guys in North Jersey," says Mr. Foster, who has run the bank since it was created out of the old Nassau Building and Loan back in 1954. "I say, 'What do you need — a new president up here?' That's not what they have in mind."

The bank is owned, incidentally, by its depositors. If it ever were sold the proceeds would be dispersed to the depositors on a pro-rated basis. "I don't foresee that happening," says Mr. Foster. The bank has also resisted selling stock, a move which Mr. Foster believes would lead to a much greater obsession with the bottom line.

"You'd get a bunch of stockholders clamoring for bigger profits," he says. "We have passed up chances to earn slightly more interest out-of-state. We believe in keeping our money working closer to home. We aren't that hungry."

floor. They hope to rent office space to investment advisers on the second and third floors, both of which will be plugged into the Laidlaw Adams computer service.

On the fourth floor, says Mr Thropp, "we're mandated to have condominimums or apartments, either one, two, or three. Our hope is that we could get some bachelor who's an investment adviser to live there, and we could also provide the computer service to the apartment." Presumably these guys would be allowed to run once or twice a month.

Where will it all end? Nassau Street financiers plot the activity the real estate market as they do the Dow Jones industrial average. Merrill Lynch's decision to move its huge training operation from New York to the Forrestal Campus is viewed by some as only a first step; expect the firm's computer facilities also to be moved to the Princeton area, these analysts say, and don't forget that Merrill Lynch's chief operating officer and board chairman, William A Schreyer, lives on Mercer Street.

Another rumor has Bache and Company coming to town. But where? Well, Bache is owned by Prudential Collins Development Company, owners of Palmer Square, is said to be seeking investment funds from Prudential. Perhaps Collins could find a way for Bache to occupy the choice spot now being leased by Laidlaw Adams.

Brokers 1, Bankers 0. Has Nassau Street reached the saturation point? No one seems to think so. "Princeton draws from a much larger area than you'd believe," says Mr. Thropp. "If we lose a professor to UCLA for a year or two we say call us collect and we'll continue to handle your account."

Mr. Grafton of Merrill Lynch contrasts Princeton with other relatively affluent communities in northern New Jersey. "Most of these people commute to New York and do business there. Princeton people like to deal locally. They're a homey group and everyone respects that feeling."

The banks, meanwhile, feel they are finally able to compete on equal ground. "This all started when the non-banks got into banking activities," says Frank Pappa, director of branch administration at Princeton Bank and Trust. He refers, of course, to the brokerage house offerings of the money market funds. "They won round 1. We're into Round 2 now and the banks are getting an equal footing."

Says Mr. Hoff of First National: "Merrill Lynch's cash management account is much like a checking account and this is why some banks are crossing the fence and getting into the brokerage business." The holding company for First National, United Jersey Banks, is acquiring a discount brokerage firm to provide such a service. "In 10 years, predicts Mr. Hoff, "you'll have a hard time differentiating" bankers and brokers.

These people with money to burn, someone ought to make a prediction about the stock market. Asked how long the current bull market will last, Mr. Grafton of Merrill Lynch reports that "some analysts are saying it will continue through 1983. I'd like to see the Dow Jones hit 1500, as some people on the street are predicting."

Given the new financial realities in town, you have to ask the question: which street does he mean? "I think," pauses Mr. Grafton, "I mean Wall Street."

UNDER SKYLIGHTS...

Plants, Walkways. The three buildings in Princeton Professional Park on Ewing have atriums — skylit galleries running the length of each building, providing entrance and light for all office suites. These atriums are now being planted with trees and plants from Florida.

For the atriums' design, Harrison Fraker, architect of the buildings working jointly with the architecture firm of Short and Ford, has retained Jim Hamilton, interior landscape designer from Lambertville. He did the public spaces for New Market, in Philadelphia's Society Hill and also made the tropical rain forest in the Reptile House of the Philadelphia Zoo.

For Princeton Professional Park, he has designed an automatic watering system, with nozzles above the trellises in the atriums. These nozzles can be directed, as needed, to the plants below. Ground sensors measure the amount of water needed, and control the length of the daily, programmed mistings. An early-morning spray is scheduled, so that clean walks and glistening plants greet the first workers to arrive.

Temperatures are controlled by transluscent thermal curtains, which close if the sunless winter sky is cold, or the sun of summer is hot. The solar design has received two grant awards from the U.S. Department of Energy, and has won a design award.

Energy features are expected to reduce operating costs by 70 percent, with an annual savings of $100,000, according to Mr. Fraker's Princeton Energy Group, consultants for the project.

Sales representatives are Seena Stein, Inc., Somerset.

TROPICS, INDOORS: Trees and plants from Florida are being transplanted into the atriums of the three buildings at Princeton Professional Park, Ewing Street. Poinsettias will brighten the winter holidays and spring bulbs and summer annuals, their own particular season. Perennial vines have been planted to climb the trellises, and there will be benches inside for visitors.

ART STORE OPENS

On Spring Street. Two brothers who are both artists have opened a combination art gallery, studio, and art supplies store at 44 Spring Street.

The two are Robert Gherman and his brother Bruce. In a combining of their first names, they are calling their store Robruso's. The opening show, which will be on view through January 8, features the works of five area artists: Jean Bezancon, Harriet Hurwitz, Elizabeth Monath, Nancy O'Connor and Marie Sturken.

"Since we are both artists," Robert Gherman notes, "we can sell artists supplies with an understanding of the product and assist people with the choice of tools to enable them to do what they want to do in their work." Mr. Gherman was born in Brooklyn and studied painting at the University of Colorado in Boulder and at the Art Student's League.

He worked in the mail room while at college, and one summer he made a trip to the east coast for the university to see how other universities service their mail. One of his stops was in Princeton where he was struck by the quaintness of the town and the friendliness of the people. It was like Boulder, he decided, less sports-minded but more intellectual, a better place in which art could flourish.

ADVENT SERVICES SET

By Area Churches. Princeton churches and religious organizations are planning special services and celebrations in the Advent season before Christmas.

The combined choirs of Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street, will present a Christmas Concert and Carol Sing on Sunday at 7:30. The concert is part of the church's 150th anniversary celebration.

The Trinity choirs, numbering 150 singers, will present a little-known "Christmas Cantata" by Arthur Honegger, with full orchestra accompaniment. The orchestra has been provided by gifts from members of the Adult Choir in memory of William Quinn, a choir member who died suddenly last spring.

Also on the program will be Benjamin Britten's "Ceremony of Carols," accompanied by harp. The evening will conclude with Christmas carols sung by the congregation and choirs with parish instrumentalists joining the play with the orchestra. The concert is under the direction of Irene Willis and is open to the public without charge.

All Saints' Episcopal Church, Terhune and All Saints' Roads, will present the Christmas Story enacted especially for little children on Sunday at 3.

Everyone is welcome.

The Church School of The Princeton United Methodist Church, Nassau Street and Vandeventer Avenue, will present a Christmas Pageant on Sunday at the 11 a.m. worship service. All are invited.

Christ Congregation, Walnut Lane and Houghton Street, will hold its annual Christmas Dinner this Sunday. The evening will begin at 6 with hors d'oeuvres and punch to be followed by a dinner for which members will bring casseroles, salads or desserts.

Young people at The Princeton Monthly Meeting, Religious Society of Friends, from kindergarteners through Young Friends, will gather this Sunday at 11 at the First Day School to talk and think about what it means that God should come into the world, not full grown, but as a baby. Then at 11:30, they will join the adults in the Meeting House for a continuation of silent worship, the reading of the Christmas story and family singing.

Children are bringing gifts for the families served by the Mercer Street Friends Center in Trenton.

Nassau Presbyterian Church will hold its Congregational Christmas Party on Sunday. The celebration will begin at 7 in the sanctuary with children's choirs, bell ringers and carolers and story reading. The congregation will then move into the Assembly room for hot wassail, Christmas cake and more music. All are welcome.

PEACE WITNESS URGED

At Nassau Church. The session, or ruling body, of Nassau Presbyterian Church is urging its congregation to participate in the Christmas for Peace effort by doing three things.

Members are asked to fast from daybreak to sunset this Sunday, the fourth Sunday in Advent, "as an expression of concern for the hungry of the world, and give the cost equivalent of one meal to an appropriate Presbyterian hunger program." In addition daily reading of specific scripture verses relating to peace is urged and on Christmas Eve at 9 p.m., the placing or holding of a lighted candle or lamp in windows as a token of friendship with all people near and far.

William P. Thompson, a Princeton resident and stated clerk or highest officer in the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., sent a special communication to Presbyterian pastors from his office at the Interchurch Center in New York City calling attention to an international ecumenical effort called Christmas for Peace.

CHILDREN INVITED

To Chanukah Festival. The religious school of the Jewish Center has planned a Chanukah Festival for Sunday from 9:45 to 6 noon in the Sanctuary and Social Hall.

Children from the first through seventh grades will participate in a variety of activities, including, making a Macabee banner, playing a Macabee Avengers computer game, and dancing Israeli dances. There will also be a movie "Really Rosie" making of sculpture, needlepoint and jewelry, and playing Dreidel Spin and Win and storytelling.

Chanukah, the Hebrew term meaning dedication, commemorates the victory of the Maccabeans over the Syrians in 165 bce. When the destroyed temple was rededicated, the sacred cruse of oil burned for eight days instead of one.

Children grades 1-7 are invited. The Center is at 457 Nassau Street. For information call 921-0100.

PROGRAM RESCHEDULED

By First Baptist Church. Because of the snow last Sunday, the special holiday program planned by First Baptist Church has been rescheduled for this Sunday. Adults and children are invited to two events that are intended as a celebration of the Christmas season.

There will be a special Breakfast served from 7 to 10:45 which will feature Christmas music, good food and Santa Claus for the children. The donation is $3.

In the afternoon there will be a song-fest at 4, featuring the choir of First Baptist Church, the Charles Higgins Concert Choir and visiting area church choirs that have been invited to present a special selection. All are invited to both events of sharing and fellowship during the Holy Season.

The Rev. Edward Smith is pastor. The church is located at John Street and Paul Robeson Place.

BULLETIN NOTES

The support group-workshop for those who are unemployed or in danger of losing their jobs will be held each Tuesday evening at 7:30 at Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street.

The group is not limited to members of the church but open to all who are going through the throes of job search.

Dr. Murray was born in Brooklyn and graduated from Cornell University Medical School in 1908. He served his internship at the Methodist Hospital of Brooklyn and began the private practice of general medicine in Brooklyn.

In 1920 he was appointed assistant visiting physician to the Tuberculosis Service at Bellevue Hospital in New York City and in 1930 was asked by the New York City Commissioner of Hospitals to organize and become the director of a tuberculosis service at the Kingston Avenue Hospital in Brooklyn. He remained in this position for the next 22 years, retiring in 1952. He also served as consulting physician to several hospitals in Brooklyn and Long Island and during World War II was an attending physician to the tuberculosis service of the Veterans Hospital Administration at Halleran Hospital in Staten Island, N.Y.

For many years he was a member of the New York Academy of Medicine and a Fellow of the American College of Physicians and the American College of Chest Physicians, serving for 10 years on the governing board of the latter. Memorial gifts may be sent to the Association for Retarded Citizens, Santa Barbara Council, 1216 State Street, Santa Barbara, Calif. 93101.

Mrs. Martin was born in Syracuse, N.Y., and attended Miss Hall's School, Pittsfield, Mass., and the Child Education Foundation of New York City. She taught nursery school until her marriage in 1938 to the late Richard M. Martin, former master at the Lawrenceville School. She has lived in Princeton since 1958.

Survivors include a son, Christopher B. Martin of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., two daughters, Sheila Mackintosh of Little Compton, R.I., and Julie Higgins of Princeton, and six grandchildren.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

WINTER
SALT INJURY –

with Sam DaTuro

Woodwinds Associates

Road salt — the cause, injury to landscape plants, either from airborne spray or runoff water. Salt injured plants experience leaf browning, reduced vigor, premature fall coloring or really leaf drop. Dead twigs appear on deciduous trees and bushes fail to open in the spring. Yellowing of the lower leaves may develop on evergreens. Most symptoms appear as temperatures rise in late winter.

Salt in the soil can have several seasons to produce symptoms of injury. A major cause is dehydration of plant tissues. Soil contains salts which cause toxic reaction in the root system or may prevent roots from adequately absorbing moisture during the growing season.

The easiest method of preventing salt injury is to altogether stop the salt spray before it makes contact with the plants. Plastic burlap, snow fence or window screen can be used as barriers. Tolerant plants are not necessarily immune to injury but they will survive better than some. Some plants more tolerant to salt injury and soil contamination are Russian olive, honey locust, black locust, white oak and red oak.

For example, titles such as "Salesman," "Nurse" and "Girl Friday" should be replaced, respectively, by "Salesperson," "Nurse (M/F)" and "General Office Work M/F." TOWN TOPICS has a copy of the Division of Civil Rights booklet, "A Guide for Employers to the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination," and will provide assistance in the wording of all such ads upon request. Advertisers' cooperation is sought in meeting the requirements of the law.

Got The Pre-Christmas Blues? Join the Group, Many Can't Cope with Demands of Holidays

"Christmas cards aren't mailed yet....four dozen cookies to make...that shepherd's costume to sew....the kids are demanding a video game for Christmas....and guess what? Ed's whole family is coming here for Christmas — again! — and spending a whole day with that mother of his...."

What ever happened to joy?

In November and December, psychotherapist Jennifer Hanson-Marz always finds her appointment book fuller than usual.

"Year after year," she says, "people come in at holiday time suffering from depression. They are overwhelmed, unable to cope. They say 'Christmas is supposed to be nice, but it doesn't feel that way and look at this list! I'll never get it all done and I feel so guilty...'"

A serenely cheerful soul who loves to remember the Christmas caroling she did as a child in England, Ms. Hanson-Marz believes the holiday season can be better and she has concrete suggestions for making it so.

But she is well-aware, professionally, of the pressures and complications that combine to make the problem. Accredited by the ACSW, with a master's degree in social work, Ms. Hanson-Marz has had a private practice in psychotherapy for some years.

"There are tremendous pressures: you're supposed to be joyous, to love everybody — something you don't do for 99 percent of the year.

"The gifts you give must be RIGHT — to show you care. You mustn't forget anyone

"You run the risk of guilt feelings: you didn't send them a card and they sent you one

Panicking over Presents. "You don't think they really liked the present. You suddenly panic because you don't think you bought enough presents for the family so you rush out and buy even more."

In an effort to find the true Christmas spirit, your family may turn to the church, only to find a Christmas pageant with different rehearsal times for each child, costumes to make, a fund-raising bazaar for which you are expected to bake or craft, another series of events to attend and another place where you are asked to give to the poor of the world.

"There is guilt if you say 'No, I won't bake' and a hassle if you say 'Yes.'

And Jenny laughs softly, because she is a cheerful person. "It is destructive to take it so seriously. If we didn't, everyone would have a much better time."

Most, although not all, of the desperate people are women, because the heaviest social burdens at holiday time are laid upon women.

Baking and Sewing. There seems to be an unspoken assumption that all women not only love to bake, but are good at it. It is assumed that all women know how to sew. One mother received a notice from her child's Sunday School: "mothers of children requiring costumes will be notified."

The holiday table must be beautifully decorated — and perfect. The traditional recipes made year after year, must be — perfect.

The grooming and dress of the hostess, no matter how much she struggled to get the standing rib out of the oven, must be — perfect. And as for wearing the same dress she wore last year...

Host and hostess and their perfectly-decorated house must be ready at all times — cookies, but no crumbs; loving hospitality and no arguments.

Men also have stereotypes they must squeeze into. From primordial days as hunter, it is assumed that all men know how to carve. From the days of T.A. Edison, it is assumed that all men are wizards at Christmas-tree electricity.

It may be even harder for men to admit they are neither, than it is for a woman to admit she hates baking cookies.

Instead of Freaking Out. . . "Take a minute and look at your list, instead of freaking out. Is it really possible — or necessary — to do such-and-such? Pressing grandmother's lace cloth to use on the table? Nobody will notice, if you don't.

"I have a friend whose guests were just finishing a superb Thanksgiving dinner, sighing with pleasure, when she suddenly remembered all the vegetables were still in the refrigerator. We all forget things, and then we allow ourselves to be guilt-tripped.

"In fact, there is really no longer the necessity for a feast because we're well-fed all the time. In the past, a mid-winter feast got you through the winter horrors, and gave you a foretaste of spring. For the Cratchitt family, in 'A Christmas Carol,' it was a struggle just to put food on the table, so that feast really represented something."

"I found a dictionary definition of 'holiday' which says it's a day 'when ordinary business is suspended, a day of exemption from labor' — ha! — 'and/or pertaining to a festival; festive; joyous.'

"But it isn't. Our picture of a holiday is defined by what we did as kids: the festive turkey, presents under the tree, a sip of wine from a parent's glass. But kids don't have to do the work"

And giving presents!

Video Games vs. Books. "Many parents think it's getting out of hand — 'ruining our kids.' We worry that a child will be in tears on Christmas day if there is an encyclopedia instead of a $200 video game. This is a resentment many people feel: 'kids today don't appreciate anything, and they have too much already.'"

The Jewish celebrations of Chanukah include the custom of a gift every night for eight nights, each one increasing in value until the best present of all on the final night.

"A Jewish family finds its own holiday contaminated by the commercialization of Christmas. Their kids want the same kinds of gifts their Christian friends get.

"And if it is not a religious Jewish family, 'Do we have a Christmas tree, just because the kids want it?'"

A new pressure has been added to gift-giving in recent years, Ms. Hanson-Marz has noted. Gifts are now supposed to be hand-made. Removes the taint of commercialism. Ornaments should be hand-made, too.

"In fact," she muses, "Christmas is full of 'should' and 'ought' and 'must'. The real 'ought' should be — to feel joy."

Your Family or Mine? Above all else, Christian and Jewish holidays are "Happy Families" time. If it's a big family gathering, it must be a happy family gathering. You must suppress the way you feel about your great-aunt's politics, your nephew's table manners, your brother-in-law's endless stories.

But whose family? "Your folks or mine, this year?"

Bundling rubbery little arms into snowsuits to visit both sets of grand-parents on a single day, with presents to carry to and from each, finally drove one young family to a rare assertion of Christmas independence:

"We are staying home on Christmas Day, from now on," they announced. "Grandparents who want to see us are welcome to come to our house."

What is curious about this, is that neither set of grandparents protested. "I don't blame them," was the response.

Grown married children announce, year after year, that "we're coming home," trading on parental love and nicely avoiding the work — and money — involved in making a Christmas of their own. Ms. Hanson-Marz has found a lot of hidden parental resentment about this.

But if you're single, where do you go?

"Do something different," is Ms. Hanson-Marz' advice. "More and more, single people are getting together with others, planning food for a co-operative feast, gifts to give each other. Churches are beginning to recognize this situation, and to help singles, although the culture still says 'family.'

"Some single people decide to ignore Christmas and spend the holiday alone, 'just like any other day.' But it's impossible: stores are closed, many restaurants are, streets are empty, there's no public transporation, telephone lines are busy with family calls. Ignoring it just isn't a viable alternative."

Problems of Divorced Man. Perhaps the most poignant single is the divorced man. As Ms. Hanson-Marz points out, he no longer has a Christmas role. There is no turkey to carve. There are no lights to string on a tree. There is, in fact, no tree from which he must saw that crucial inch so it will fit — perfectly — into the tree-holder, watching each day to make sure there is enough water in the holder ..

His children may be thousands of miles away.

"Is Daddy going to be here for Christmas?" might have been wrung from the heart of Tiny Tim himself

. It may be even worse if Daddy lives close by. To the complications of dividing time equally between grandparents, is added the need to make sure Daddy gets his hour. And if you think he isn't competing with Mommie in gift-giving

The Ultimate . . . "New Year's Eve is the ultimate," Ms. Hanson-Marz has found. "You must be happy. You must stay up until midnight. You must have a place to go. You must have a date. You must spend money and, probably, get drunk."

To be 29, single and without a date New Year's Eve or a place to go, is worse than being without a family at Christmas-time.

Here again, joining with others or thinking up non-traditional ways tn celebrate can be the answer, although it's a delicate matter: there is a social taboo against advertising the fact that you're alone.

One group of friends, exhausted from the holidays, gathered for New Year's champagne in a living-room. The evening was young, but already there were yawns.

Finally, the inspiration of the century: "Let's celebrate New Year's Eve on Atlantic Standard Time." So they popped the cork, kissed in the New Year and were home and asleep by 11 p.m.

How to cope?

"First of all," Ms. Hanson-Marz begins, "know that you're not alone in feeling miserable instead of happy It's normal to have the blues and a lot of anxiety. Second, we're expected to do it all perfectly, but face the fact that you just can't.

Making Choices. "Decide what's important. Begin to take responsibility and make choices about what you can do to make the holiday better: it's an opportunity, and people

PROGRAM PLANNED

At Art People Center. The Art People Center, the new home of the Arts Council at 102 Witherspoon Street, will present a program this weekend to celebrate the Christmas-Chanukah season. The program will combine dance, music and story-telling and will be presented Friday and Saturday at 7:30 and on Sunday at 2 and 4:30.

The Ballet Workshop will present "The Little Match Girl," based on the Hans Christian Anderson tale. The original choreography is by Imogen S. Wheeler, director of the Ballet Workshop, and the music is by British composer John Ireland.

Spotlight Children's Theatre, directed by Brian Collar, will sing songs of the season from both the Christmas and Chanukah repertoire. Also on the program will be Susan Danoff, story teller, assisted by dancer Sandy Goettinger. Ms. Danoff has performed and conducted workshops in Princeton, New York City and Syracuse. Ms. Goettinger has studied, performed and taught ballet and modern dance for many years in New York City and in Princeton.

The story to be told in the program is an Armenia folk tale, "The Gift of Gold," from the collection, "Three Apples Fell From Heaven," by Virginia Tashjian. The story raises the question, "What can bring real happiness to human beings?"

Between the two scheduled performances on Sunday afternoon, these artists and others who will be teaching courses at the Art People Center in January will be present to describe their courses and answer questions. Registration forms and flyers will be available.

T. TIM IN TRENTON

"Carol" at Artists Showcase. "A Christmas Carol," adapted and directed by Tom Moffit in a multi-media production designed by Gerald E. "A Christmas Carol" will play this Friday at 8:30, this Saturday at 8 and this Sunday at 2:30 and 7:30. Reservations may be made by calling 392-1704.

Rick Bossman, who has appeared in "Godspell" and "Man of LaMancha," is Scrooge. (He also leads a carol sing-along at the end of the evening, and his wife, Donnamarie Bossman, is narrator.)

Bob Grayce is Jacob Marley's ghost and the ghosts of Christmas Past, Present and Future are Mary Rees, Cathy Lyons and Charlain Andres.

given at Mill Hill by the New Jersey Center for the Performing Arts.

The work of the Princeton choreographer will be performed this Thursday through Saturday at 8. A member of the Princeton University dance faculty since 1975, Ms. Abrahams has choreographed for McCarter Theatre and Chicago's Goodman Theatre.

PUPPETS, AND....

Then Some! Marottes, hand-puppets and black-light figures — more than just strings to all these. With the traditional marionettes, they are part of the show from France's puppeteer Philippe Genty, who will return to McCarter — he was here two seasons ago — with all his friends.

The booking is for 8 p.m. Saturday, January 8. The show is the Compagnie Philippe Genty.

Jim Henson, who created the Muppets, called Genty "one of the most talented showmen of the puppet theatre today." The program he will bring to McCarter is designed as much for adults as for children.

One of his most famous creations is an ostrich boa, maneuvered to behave like a vain and vivacious woman. It later becomes three ostrich ballerinas. Characteristics are conveyed through movement, as well as appearances. Genty himself introduces the audience to the art of puppetry.

"The Impossible Years" has been booked for May 17-29 and for May 31 to June 12, the Playhouse will bring together the original Broadway cast of "Patio/Porch," with Fannie Flagg and Ronnie Claire Edwards from "The Waltons".

"They're Playing Our Song" will play June 15 to July 3. After the holiday, Julius La Rosa will appear in "Kismet" (July 6-24) and the late summer offering will be "Showboat," from July 27 to August 14.

Gary Burghoff will star in "Boney Kern" from August 17 to September 6, and "The Pirates of Penzance" will return September 9, playing through the 25th. After that, will be "Kiss Me Kate," with stars to be announced.

FOR '83-'84

At Villagers Barn. With '82 still here, the Franklin Villagers Barn Theatre in Franklin Township has announced its '83-'84 schedule.

"Morning's At Seven": March 11-April 17. "A wickedly funny play."

"That Championship Season": May 13-June 12. Four team-mates and a reunion with their high-school coach.

"Play It Again, Sam": July 8-August 4. Woody Allen's.

"Splendor in the Grass": September 9-October 16. Teenage love in the mid-west.

"Deathtrap": November 11-December 18. Thriller.

"The Man in the Glass Booth": January 13-February 12, 1984.

FOR SPRING....

At Bucks County Playhouse. April 19 is only four months away. That's the re-opening date for the Bucks County Playhouse in New Hope. The show will be "Damn Yankees" with Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw. It will play through May 15.

HOLIDAY FESTIVITIES

Creating Lasting Memories. Abundant food and drink to warm the body and the soul in a festive setting, a gathering of beloved friends and relations this month, will spark a memory which will kindle their hearts throughout the year.

Dishes prepared with loving, painstaking care deserve the finest wines and after dinner liqueurs you can afford. There is a wide selection of the best available in the area at Ellsworth's in Princeton Junction.

Because Ellsworth's is a specialty food shop with a terrific larder of gourmet items, such as imported and domestic cheeses, coffees, mustards, chocolates, cookies, and many other delicacies, their staff had a good working knowledge of which wines will complement what each hostess has prepared. They are always cheerful and willing to help at this shop, where the spirits are affordable as well as of top quality.

IT'S NEW

At bit of the bubbly is a must while celebrating the joys of this season in many homes. Champagne is not only delightful to drink as it adds a festive air, but it also makes a thoughtful gift. Ellsworth's has a huge selection from the finest French brands to the less expensive varieties with American labels. Why not give your friends a magnum of Great Western champagne for $17.50 or Gold Seal for $22.60? There are a number of fine Spanish champagnes in stock, one of which is on sale during the next few weeks for $4.99 per bottle.

It is a joy to do some Christmas shopping at Ellsworth's because many of their best choices for gifts are already wrapped and await customers. Boxes of Bolla wine, two red and two white are $19.99 or one red and two white for $9.99. A cella set of two reds and one white wine is wrapped up and sold for $10.99.

SCANDINAVIAN CRAFTS: Heartfelt Christmas greetings from Scandinavia can be seen at Nordicraft where an abundance of crafts and decorations from the northern countries can be admired. Many of the ornaments seen are heart-shaped and done in natural woods. Warm mohair blankets, skeins of knitting wool, firestarters, heather brooms, and fine Swedish crystal will make nice gifts.

Gourmet Baskets. The spacious shop is filled with gourmet baskets which combine some spirits with an assortment of cheeses, cocoas, pimentos, teas, biscuits, and sweets. One can order whatever one's choice might be and Ellsworth's will deliver them by December 24th. Now that is an easy way to shop!

The selection of cheese is endless at the shop including blue Bavarian, smoked rambal, bries of all sorts, delice de France, raclette, Danish fontina, and several saltfree varieties, to mention a few. There are pates as well such as: pate Forestier, de Lapin de canard a l'orange, and mousse de foie de canard. Caviar, Spanish chorizo, Australian and Canadian bacons, and touristenwurst are popular with many during the holidays.

Tins of cookies are welcome gifts, especially the ones which say "To a House of a Friend, the Road is Never Long" in two sizes at $14.45 and $9.55. Chocolates by Lindt, Tobler, and Perugina will tempt the sweet tooth.

Party platters with meats, cheeses, sandwiches or hors d'oeuvres are a convenient way to entertain and will relieve the hostess. Priced on a basis of 10 people, Ellsworth's needs only 24 hours notice to prepare a delicious assortment on your own platter or theirs.

Christmas at Cox's. The Christmas spirit has come to Cox's on Nassau Street where residents flock to find their favorite newspaper or magazine. While they are browsing or eating one of the shop's delicious sandwiches they can think about what they will serve to their holiday guests. There are many choices.

Now that the deli section of the shop has been completed, the assortment of cheeses and fresh breads tempt the shopper still further. Fine brie will be on sale for $4 a pound through New Year's while the Krakus hams are sold for $3.50 per pound.

The breads and coffee buns and cakes will be available until christmas morning because Cox's will be open until 11 a.m.!

There will always be a stock of fresh freesia, roses, mums and poinsettias to pick up and take to a friend's home at the last minute. The shop has many Christmas greens. Their own wreaths which are gaily hanging outside right now are $6.99.

Cox's will make up fruit and cheese baskets beginning at $15. It is good to know that the famous Artic ice cream of Trenton can now be found at the shop, including the refreshing ices in raspberry and lemon. The chocolate mousse cake with its holiday decoration will make the perfect dessert on Christmas day.

Fortunately for the Christmas shopper, a new store has opened in the Montgomery Shopping Center just in time to buy holiday gifts. The Ardic Map Store, unique to New Jersey, can compete with the best shops of its kind found in the large metropolitan areas.

Opened only one month ago, the Ardic Map store not only sells all of the nautical charts and geological survey maps published, and decorative wall maps for the home or office, but a fine assortment of gorgeous books which will make wonderful Christmas presents.

The spacious shop is filled with mounted maps of all kinds and a series of spectacular globes from a tiny desk one for a child to an impressive plexiglass one for $1100. The latter is the ultimate in globes, with a 36-inch diameter, the earth inside, and the stars outside, mounted on a tall wooden stand.

Many of the shop's globes have lamps within, a terrific family present which will Hit the Slopes. The snows will soon fall and those who are able will take off for the nearest mountains to test their skills once again on the slopes. It would be wise to stop in at Goodsports in the Mercer Mall to outfit your favorite skier with equipment or clothing because all of the prices there are discounted by 20 to 50 percent.

Terrific down jackets by Head, Gerry and several other companies are now in stock to be matched with stretch ski pants or the warm bibbers for men and women. One of the best color combinations is a Head jacket in orangey red with a grey and black geometric stripe across the front.

Goodsports, whose owner Steve Speigel really shops around extensively for the best prices available in ski and running gear, also carries a full line of heavy sweaters for the winter months and the thinner lightweight sweater designed just for skiing. Many of the brightly-colored ski sweaters match the jackets by Head, Obermeyer, Fera, Gerry, and Ellesse.

While there is still a good selection of discounted tennis racquets at the shop, its main emphasis during the next months will be in ski equipment. Boxes of Nordica and Trappeur boots are stacked all around the shop and hundreds of skies and poles are on display so that customers will be able to put their own ski packages together at great savings. Head, Olin Mark II, Rossignol, and K2 skies are of fine quality, so why pay more?

Children's ski clothing is also featured at Goodsports including bibbers in junior sizes and the White Mountain Down jackets which are colorful and durable.

Gifts For Everyone. The Montgomery Pharmacy has gifts for almost everyone in the family. The Christmas display found in the shop rivals that of most gift shops. Its stock runs the gamut from tiny bisque porcelain figures to Timex watches to a Pac-man scrapbook. Yards of Christmas wrappings are now available.

The shop has all of the lovely Christmas paper goods by the Hallmark company including: terrific sets of plates, tablecloths, cups, and placemats which will make entertaining easier yet more festive: gay round boxes which can be filled with homemade goodies and given as gifts; and tiny boxes to hang on the tree which will hold a gift of jewelry or small thought for each member of the family. All of the Hallmark boxed Christmas cards are reduced by 20 percent. The beautiful Hallmark collector's tree ornaments begin at $4.50.

Montgomery Pharmacy has all of the candies necessary to make Christmas sweet and traditional. Little Santas, snowmen, and turkey covered in foil will adorn the tree and can be eaten on Christmas day. They delight the hearts of children and catch the glimmer of tree lights. Gift boxes of Russell Stover candies are thoughtful yet convenient gifts to buy. Candy canes and holiday suckers are great socking stuffers.

There are a number of household items which will make nice presents such as: oven-to table casseroles; cheese platters and boards; a full stock of Christmas candles; and small appliances, digital clocks and radios.

Scents for men and women are always well-received. Those made by such famous names as Chanel, Christian Dior, Pierre Cardin, and Ralph Lauren can all be found at the drug store.

Children are never forgotten at Montgomery Pharmacy. In fact there will be a drawing for children on Thursday before Chirstmas for the huge toy-filled stocking displayed in the window. Stuffed animals by Gund, Dakin, Applause, and Animal World will add to Santa's surprises. A christmas sleigh full of the muppets is one of the cheeriest puzzles seen in the shop's vast selection of 500 to 1000 piece jigsaws. Collector's muppet figures in pewter will immortalize their appeal.

A teenager might like one of the shop's small mirrors which say "You're Gorgeous" or "A face only a mother could love." A wide assortment of gold-filled jewlery will please the giver. Pendants, hearts, bracelets, and pierced earrings are all on view.

Micawber Books a Treasury. A treasury of carefully-selected books can be found at Micawber Books on Nassau Street this season. The collection runs the gamut from best sellers to Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland" to the latest literature on the nuclear issue. There are no superfluous books in this shop where one can spend hours browsing among the best editions available. What is not seen there can be special ordered and all of the new hard-covered books are discounted by 10 percent.

There are some beautiful religious books on display reminding us of the real meaning of this season such as: "A Christmas Testament", at a reasonable $25, illustrated and illuminated by Mr Philip Kopper, formerly of Princeton, the "Psalms of David," for $17.50 illustrated by James Freemantle who has dedicated his professional life to the subject, and "The Gift of the Magi," for $11.95-the significant classic story of the joy of giving.

There are many wonderful gift editions of older stories for children at Micawber. "Kidnapped" and "Treasure Island" in hard cover will be passed down through the generations as will Carroll's "Alice", which is a facsimile of the Penny Royal Press limited edition featuring woodcuts by Barry Moses. "The Dwindling Party" by Edward Gorey who did the stage design for the broadway production of Dracula is a good choice at $8.95 for a young friend, as are the poems of Shel Silverstein.

Glorious art books have always been a favored gift at Christmas and will be enjoyed for many years. Beautiful reproductions of the work of Milton Avery by Strathcona Publications is a topical edition. Others of Sargent and "Ente at Ninety" are nice selections.

A new "Nicolas Nickelby" for $19.95- printed in its original form including photos from the play-is a nice gift for Dickens' buffs. The fables by Arnold Tohel are timeless and a must in every home.

"The Palace Museum, Peking" by Wan-Go Weng and Yang Boda provides an exquisite view of the Forbidden City, its palaces, gardens, and courtyards as well as its magnificent treasurers-the perfect gift to one who is lucky enough to have visited there.

A thirty-year project, the Library of American series, a collection of single volumes of Mark Twain, Whitman, Stowe and Melville, to mention a few, is available at the shop, an interesting gift, one volume or several in the series.

Jonathon Schell's "The Fate of the Earth" "With Enough Shovels" by Robert Schaer, and George Kennan's "Nuclear Delusion" provide insights into one of the most important issues in recent times.

There are several local authors represented at Micawber including works by Joyce Carol Oates, Heller McAlphin, and George Ball.

FRESH DECORATIONS: Perna's of Princeton Junction will make lovely wreaths to suit the tastes of all our residents. Freshly cut trees and tiny ones made of boxwood for centerpieces and beautiful Christmas plants can be sent by the shop, which has a wide selection of colorful or aments and decorations.

For Children. Why push and shove in the discount toy shops when there are many discounted and reasonably-priced toys right here on Nassau St? Nassau Hobby has a creative selection of toys which will interest and occupy the children of Princeton and it is certainly a more pleasant place to shop than many other toy stores!

Compare the prices of the Hobby shop's Lego, the ever-popular children's gift which will challenge children from 3 to 15. Many a parent has been seen putting together a rocket system or a tiny village, it is almost addictive. The Alpha I rocket is currently on sale at the shop for only $14.87 as are many other interesting gifts for children who like to work with their hands.

The good news is that most youngsters here enjoy working with their hands, but the bad news is that they do not like to clean up afterwards. There are two items which will keep lego a bit neater so it will not break the vacuum cleaner, a storage cloth which folds up into a bag at $10.99 and the lego carrier, a small plastic case with different compartments for the building set. A small carrier including a universal building set is on sale for only $10.99.

A current rage among the young are the natural wood Insectarions, models of insects and prehistoric animals which are not only a challenge to assemble but educational and nice to display in a child's room. The packages are flat, easy to mail, and begin at $7.98.

An extraordinary buy of a very costly I scale train set can be found for the true train buff at the store. An LGB starter set of model trains is on special at $169.95, a great value to those who know about this scale of train, which the shop discounts by 20 percent in any case. The complete line of the ho-scale is in stock including the Atlas which is reduced to $21.98.

Other gifts from the hobby shop include: board games; model cars made by Rio, Burago, and Solido, clay of all kinds; and the educational crepe foam puzzles by Lauri for children from three years and up.

Make Your Own. A long evening skirt is not difficult to make and would lend a certain elegance to a lady's holiday wardrobe. It could be worn at home in the evenings or at any party. The Fabric Shop in the Princeton shopping center has a wide selection of dressy materials for such a skirt. Bright and festive taffetas in plaids and solid colors, moire taffetas in many of the new colors and soft cotton velveteen, are all available there. The moires come in a deep plum, dark green, burgundy, and black.

Taffeta can also be used as effective table cloths. Some of the plaids are quilted, which would make nice holiday vests or individual placemats.

Other Christmas calicos are quilted and reversible, practical for less washing.

The Christmas calicos (many of which can be used all year long) sport berries, decorative bows, and tiny ornaments. It is not too late to make a stuffed animal out of these eyecatching fabrics for your cherished youngster. A handy seamstress could still fashion a robe out of one of the Fabric Shop's soft cozy velours.

All of the pretty trimmings in the shop, which has a good selection of winter wools and crepes, can be used while planning your Christmas decor. Eyelets, lace trim, red or green braiding, and the gay felt squares found there will dress up your tree and wreaths. Children can feel useful when they work with felt to decorate small gifts such as a pencil box or an ornament made into aframe with their picture inside. The felts come in nine by twelve inch squares of 72 inch widths by the yard.

Pearls For Your Lady. Glowing strands of fresh water and cultured pearls from Forest Jewelers will make the most desireable gift for your lady this Christmas. The new jewelers on Nassau St. offer many interesting and unusual handmade pieces of jewelry many of which are made right on the premises.

Mitchell Forest, owner of the shop, has many years of experience as an apprentice in New York. He has creative ideas and high standards in jewelry making which you can observe when you see the fine earrings, pins, pendants, and cominations of precious stones and gold beads on display there.

Decorative clocks by L'Epee and Bulova make good gifts. Watches by Bulova, Pulsar, Citizen, and Accutron Swiss are first class too. A few pieces of the fine work of Gunnar Agerholm, a silver and goldsmith whose work was recently exhibited at the shop, are still available. His unusual handwrought earrings, rings, and necklaces are many of a lustrous rose gold. High-fashioned 14 carat gold and precious gems are the featured work of the well known jewelry deisgner Lorraine Licciardello of New York. Gifts from Forest Jewelers can be specially packaged in small custom-made porcelain boxes, lined in velvet.

Sculptures. The exquisite work of potters Nina Gelardi and her husband John Shedd continues to enchant Princeton area shoppers with good reason. Each year, the talented young couple produce some of the loveliest sculptures on the market. They are sculptures but most of them are utilitarian as well as artistic which is what makes them wonderful gifts.

The exclusively handcrafted porcelain pottery, individually decorated and signed by Mr. Shedd are brilliant of color and design, fully lead-free and dishwasher-proof. Ms. Gelardi's work is quite different, using a smoke-firing process with leaves and wood, unlike the high glazes used by her husband.

Whatever the shopper's taste, their work will appeal as gifts. Platters, dishes, wonderful vases, large and small, whimsical tea pots, goblets for wine, bowls, and pitchers are all available at the couple's studio shop, a 200-year old converted mill in Rocky Hill.

A small inexpensive thought from Clayphernalia is one of the enchanting ornaments designed for the holidays. They include: candy canes, fish, bunnies, tiny houses, dinosaurs, and a star of David.

Fabric Folk Art. Among the most distinctive handcraft work seen in the Princeton area is that of a young woman from New England, Lou Souders, whose fabric folk art can be seen at Contemporary Impact. Life-like life size geese, ducks, and roosters are creatively crafted in 100 percent hand-dyed woolens. Considering how beautiful they are (they have just arrived) they are priced most reasonably and would make a stunning artistic gift for a birder or anyone in fact who appreciates waterfowl.

The all-white snow goose is only $28, while the Canadian goose of several natural colors is $68. An old-fashioned pull toy with a rooster sitting on her nest is really an adult toy, a piece to collect. A rooster weathervane crafted hy the same artist with different strips of antique quilts.

Quilts and fabrics from the European countries are featured at Contemporary Impact. Cotton imported from France, Holland and Italy is available by the yard at the shop, where several patterns of Christmas tablecloths to be hemmed and matching napkins can be seen. Hand-made quilts for children are wonderful gifts. One of the most special is a small sized one appliqued with the "man in the moon" a navy sleeping bag for $90. Infant quilts are $75.

Several interesting ornaments can be seen at the shop, many of which are made there by Gisela and Rie such as: mice; cats, hearts,; Santas; and nostaglic old-fashioned ones of lace which come in kits. Every girl and mother should have an all-cotton apron with handmade lace in three sizes for their kitchen dressing this season.

Skirm's Smoke Shop which moved to Chambers St this year, has everything a smoker could wish for from a fine selection of imported cigarettes and cigars, to handmade accessories which

The answer to the energy crisis:
HEAT WITH ACORNS
Acorn Slipper Socks.

Acorns really are a small investment in home heating! What could be more simple or economical than putting on a pair of Acorn Slipper Socks to solve the problem of drafty floors and cold feet?

And they will warm your feet! You'll enjoy the cozy feeling of the plush thermal sole and the hugability of the natural wool sock. The handsome leather side and sole are form-fitted and double lock-stitched to insure years of wear. The quality and craftsmanship are unsurpassed.

And don't leave your Acorns at home. They are meant to be more than just a slipper...great for the ski lodge, dorm, and scurrying about the campsite.

Price No Object!

For some, Christmas is an extravagant time of year. It is the time to over-do. Here are a few suggestions for those to whom price is no object.

A bottle of fine old brandy from Ellsworth's Liquors. Reserve du Fondateur cognac by Martell, sells for only $1300 a bottle. Another gift from that shop for the wine connoisseur is a La Cave wine unit.

A six-foot Paddington Bear will delight bear lovers of all ages and can be seen in Allen's window.

A Nakamichi 700 ZXE stereo system from Hal's Stereo in Lawrenceville is a mere $2400.

Five pounds of chocolate truffles from Thomas Sweet Chocolates with rum, grand marnier, and mocha fillings will soothe your chocolate lover for $65.

A stereo video recorder from $1200, available at the Video Scene in the Village Shopper in Rocky Hill, will give the family many happy hours of quality viewing with the best sound possible.

Hand-made inlaid birds-eye maple music boxes from Sorrento, Italy will attract the eye at Forest Jewelers. At $400, these superb music boxes play in two octaves.

will lend elegance to the rooms where he indulges in the habit.

Stunning humidors of porcelain or ceramic, some with leather trim, and those of choice wood with matching pipe racks for the pipe enthusiasts can be found at Skirm's. The closed humidors for cigars are carved of several different woods and lined in cedar. Ashtrays for cigarettes, cigars and pipes make pleasant gifts.

The shop has many stocking stuffers which will please on Christmas morning such as: cigarette cases which are on sale for $7.50; cigar clippers; pipe cleaners; key cases; and lighters.

Boxes of cigars or a selection of the smoker's favorite ones in a mixed selection are on view at the shop as are a number of hand made imported pipes from all over the world. Years of expertise stand behind Skirm's who will assist its customers in choosing the most favorable blend of smoking tobacco for gifts.

A Recorder From Video Scene. Would it not be fun during these holidays to relax in your home and watch a favorite movie of your choice right there? If you miss something important on television which you would like to see later go the the Video Scene in the Village Shopper on Route 206 in Rocky Hill (across from the Montgomery Center) and buy the family a video recorder!

Video Scene is a specialty store for stereo video recorders and component televisions which begin at $525 for one which will record up to 24 hours. A more costly recorder by one of the top brands found there will provide the capability to record up to 14 days.

In other words, some models enable a family who is travelling to record eight different events shown at eight different times, on different channels! Now you will not have to miss that series on public television you have been watching. You can go out to a party and rest assured that you will see it at a later date.

Recorders are a great convenience for young children too. Many feel that they increase the quality of television viewing - not the quantity. A child can watch a sport's event or a movie when his or her parents feel the time is best, rather than the later

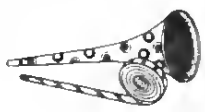
The Video Scene has a catalogue of 1000 movies available for rental, by day or with an annual club membership of $50. New arrivals include: "Annie," "Shoot the Moon," "Tron," and "Six Pack."

Heart Warmer at Nordicraft. In Scandinavia hearts are used to symbolize the joys of this season. At Nordicraft, Princeton's own Scandinavian shop, the heart warming theme is seen everywhere. Tiny red wooden ornaments and heart-shaped candleholders of the same material will add color to the home this month.

One of the prettiest candleholders is on of natural wood which can be disassembled after the holidays and easily packed away. At $25, it has gay red apples attached to the round center and red candles which are available at the shop. Bags of firestarters, bellows, and heather brooms are good house gifts.

Bundles of wheat for the birds is another symbol of Christmas in the Nordic countries. These bundles gaily wrapped with red ribbon and several of the shop's straw decorations will lend a natural simple aura of celebration to the home this season.



Boda crystal of Sweden is featured at Nordicraft. Exquisite candlesticks, vases, and platters will made lovely gifts. The snowball crystal candleholder or the ornaments shaped like hearts are nice thoughts. A Finnish glass platter with a raised fish in the center will look handsome on a buffet with a fish mousse.

Sheep and goats are included in the fairytales and the mythology of the Scandinavian countries. Many endearing sheep made of wool and fleece, inlcuding a tea cozy in the shape of a sheep, make whimisical gifts. Other notable items found at Nordicraft are: handmade jewelry, a silver book mark, Swedish Christmas cards and Carl Larson wrapping paper.

FABRIC ART: A glorious snow goose, handmade by a fabric folk artist of hand-dyed wool is one of the many unusual gifts to be found at Contemporary Impact, where imported cotton fabric is sold by the yard. Handmade ornaments, nostalgic ones of lace, and quilts galore are included in the shop's holiday display.

Fathers and sons are never forgotten when it comes to buying the thoughtful gift, but it is often difficult to find something they would really appreciate. H.F. Donnelly and Sons on Route 1 in Lawrenceville is virtually a department store just for men. There you will find quality clothing and small gift items which will please the most discerning gentleman in your life.

Some men like to dress up now and then, especially during the holidays. Look for one of the bright solid or tartan vests which look so handsome under a navy blazer with grey or plaid slacks which are available at the shop for very large or tall men as well. A camel's hair sport coat is a classic gift which will never offend. They begin at $215, but there are nice navy blazers for as little as $115.

Hats of all sizes and shapes will be found at R.F. Donnelly and Sons including: the

Easy Gift Shopping

One of the easiest ways to shop is to give a gift certificate from any one of several fine shops. Would not your favorite wine-taster enjoy a wine-tasting party at Ellsworth's? A pleasant room for such an event, and wine and cheese is part of the package provided by the spirits shop.

Every teenager and youngsters of all ages would love a gift certificate from The Music Cellar as it is difficult to choose just what they would like these days. Whatever you buy, it will probably be wrong, so let them have the fun of buying their records and tapes themselves.

Books are most personal. Everyone of us would like a generous gift certificate from Titles Unlimited or Micawber books. It will be fun to while away some hours making our choices after the busy holiday festivities.

Because all indoor house plants are on sale for 50% off at Peterson's Nursery, a gift certificate would be a thoughtful gift for the indoor gardener.

timeless felt dress hat which is not so easy to find these days; rain hats; sporty Irish tweed ones; and the velour variety.

Some men and most boys prefer to be comfortable weekends and simply wear t comfortable Pendleton flan or wool shirt in plaid or a sol color. The chamois shirt also a favorite in Princeto and comes in many colors. Pendleton wool blankets, car robes, or the white natural throw are thoughtful gifts for the man on the go. The car robe sells for $47.50 and the blankets begin at $105.

There is a sale on outerwear at the shop this month. Hotofil II fur-lined hooded jackets, thinsulate Woolrich ones lined in plaid, and other storm coats are all reduced by 25 percent, a good Christmas present.

Sweaters in the new burguandy or the soft pastels can be found at this men's shop. Cableknits, wool bleods, cashmeres, rag sweaters, and golfing seaters for the lucky traveller are numerous. Big and tall men are not forgotten in this department either.

Other small gift items which will please a father include; Christmas ties (a Santa, a tree or a snowman); bright red Christmas tree socks, cuff-links, handsome scarves of Australian wool; warm pyjamas and Pendleton robes.

What would the holidays to be without a refreshing taste of delicious ice cream? Carvel Ice Cream Store, Kingston Mall, Route 27, has scrumptuous treats in store for the celebration of Hannukkah and Christmas this year.

A menorah candelabrum of yellow and pink will top one of the shop's tasty ice cream cakes of chocolate and vanilla ice cream with a chocolate crunch layered inside. They large square cakes will serve up to 20 people.

A snowman, a Santa, and a Christmas tree will be the frozen themes on the Christmas cakes. The crunch is made of crushed chocolate cookies. Another decorative variety is the regular chocolate and vanilla covered with chopped almonds and chocolate. The cakes may be ordered until Dec. 23rd.

Christmas Decorations. The wreath, a world of decoration in a simple circle and a welcoming Christmas art, is seen in all its glory at Perna's flower shop on the road to Princeton Junction. Wreathes prepared with gay red or plaid bows, cones and berries will welcome all visitors to the home. The selection of Christmas decorations at the shop will enable the shopper to use their own creativity and fashion their own.

"GOING WEST": Also known as "Express Train," this lithograph by Thomas Hart Benton is in the Donald B. Marron Collection of American Prints, now on view in the Princeton University Art Museum. It is one of 105 prints by many of America's best-known artists, reflecting a century of life and art.

ART
In Princeton

AMERICAN PRINTMAKING At Art Museum. Until recently, printmaking in America was a secondary art form. Before the mid-19th century there were almost no printmakers, per se. Instead, artists who worked primarily as painters and illustrators frequently explored fine arts printmaking as an alternative medium.

Despite its minor role in the arts, the history of printmaking in this contry reflects nearly all the significant movements that marked American art since the middle of the nineteenth century. The graphic arts created since that time include the work of many of America's most important artists. Much of this art is a reflection of the aesthetic growth and expanding creative energy that characterized the young nation in the century after the Civl War. In addition, the graphics of that era are, in effect, a capsule history of life in this country.

The prints from the Donald B. Marron Collection of American Art, on display at the Princeton University Art Museum, are a record of printmaking in the United States from the mid-nineteenth through the twentieth centuries. Beginning with the earliest works, Winslow Homer's "Campaign Sketches" of the Civil War, 105 prints by 27 of the country's best known artists are a chronicle of American art and American life as well.

Included in the collection are prints by The Eight as well as work by the group of famous artists that clustered around the Whitney Studio Club during the early decades of this century and that of the Regionalists, artists who captured life in America during the 1930's.

Who's Who in Art. The list of included artists reads like a roster in Who's Who in American Art. Milton Avery, George Bellows, Mary Cassat, Childe Hassam, Edward Hopper, Reginald Marsh and Grant Wood are only a few of those whose work can be seen in the collection.

Many of the best known artists began their careers as illustrators. Some, such as Homer, had no formal training. Instead, many learned their craft while working for the journals, often the only way an artist could earn a living. As a result, much of the included work is narrative rather than decorative.

Popular taste, too, encouraged the creation of art as narration. Much of the century represented in the display was an era when Americans liked nothing better than to look upon images of themselves, their achievements and their country.

Many of America's important moments are captured here. The building of the Panama Canal, the Civil War and life during the Depression were all considered suitable subjects for art, as was life in the cities and on the farms.

Record of America's Moods. America's moods are recorded here, as well. The tranquil optimsim that characterized the country at the turn of the century can be seen in Childe Hassam's etchings and Mary Cassat's gently colored drypoint and aquatint portrayal of women and a child.

The nation's affection for its industrial expansion and its pride in the burgeoning cities is evident in the work of Louis Lozowick, Joseph Pennell and Martin Lewis, who were among the many artists who captured this aspect of life in the United States. The desire for isolationism and craving for the simpler life in the years before World War II is reflected in the prints by regionalist artists such as Grant Wood, Thomas Hart Benton and John Stuart Curry whose collective focus was on images of Middle America.

The prints that are included in the collection appear conservative when compared with the graphics of the past few decades. Yet many of these works represent artistic statements that were quite radical in their time. The dramatic, angular fragments found in Lyonel Feininger's "The Gate," John Marin's equally innovative views of New York and Weehawken; Stuart Davis' organic abstraction of the urban landscape and Charles Cheeler's sparse geometry all opened conceptual doors for later artists who were to make even more radical departures from the familiar image.

Even Thomas Hart Benton's turbulent realism and Charles Burchfields lyrical portrayals of nature -- essentially representational work -- represent highly original approaches to realism, styles that would have been unacceptable and, conceivably, impossible only a few years earlier.

A small display of works from the Museum's collection by many of these same artists and a few of their contemporaries complements the graphics display and adds a pleasant note was well. The mixed-media exhibition includes watercolors as well as drawings and prints. The addition of color and the more fluid approach found in both the paintings and the drawings adds another artistic point of view. Watercolors by Hassam, Davis and Demuth provide an additional perspective from which to view these artists.

In addition, the work of Ben Shahn and Georgia O'Keefe, not included in the Marron collection, contributes another dimension to the display, allowing the viewer a multifaceted view of this rich era in American art.

THREE ARTISTS EXHIBIT

At University League. The exhibition of paintings of Margaret Kidd, in the Dorothy Brown Room of the Princeton University League, 171 Broadmead, has been enlarged by the addition of works by Patrick Goldsmith and Kevin Henneberry.

Mr. Goldsmith, a painter, has traveled through Europe, Central America and Southeast Asia sketching and studying the masters. He studied at the Art Students League and the School of Visual Arts and has had three one-man shows at East Village Cafes.

The show will hang through January 7, and may be viewed weekdays between 9 and 1.

are wonderfully creative.

"Take time for yourself. Give yourself one gift for the holidays, perhaps a special flower nobody ever gives you. Or change the table and set it the way YOU want to.

"Reduce your expectations. This year, decide there is one thing you've always done in past years, that you will omit from your list. Next year, let go one or two other things.

"There is a taboo on discussing whether traditions are good. But after Christmas, sit down with the family and talk. Maybe you'll learn that everybody hates the pumpkin pie you've traditionally had every year.

"You've been dragging in this huge tree, for years and years. But the kids are 19 and 20 now, and maybe 60-year-old Dad isn't up to it. Or, maybe that tree ceremony is the one thing everybody wants to keep.

"Christmas isn't going to go away. We might as well begin now to decide how to return it to the feelings that are associated with Christmas — the joyous, festive, relaxed, loving feelings. You might call it 'Putting Christmas back in Christmas.'"

Canadian Brass Combines Artistry and Entertainment in McCarter Performance

Music-at-McCarter has established a firm reputation for presenting musical performances of the highest artistic standards. The Canadian Brass gave a new dimension to this reputation, combining great artistry with sheer entertainment. Their performance at McCarter Theatre on Monday night brought a normally staid and cool Princeton audience to its feet.

Works written specifically for brass quintet are not plentiful. To make up for this dearth in repertoire, the ensemble uses transcriptions of a wide variety of works, from operatic excerpts to organ pieces to popular songs. This may seem an abomination to purists, but this quintet of superb musicians uses arrangements which are so well conceived and expertly performed that one is simply forced to sit up, listen and enjoy.

Only two works on the program were originally written solely for brass instruments. Both the "Gallhard Battaglia" of Samuel Scheidt and the "Canzona Prima a Cinque" of G Gabrieli date from the middle Baroque. In that day, antiphonal performances were standard practice. The Brass took full advantage of this fact in the Gabrieli. The performers scattered themselves to different parts of the theatre (including the balcony) which highlighted the imitative character of the piece. Despite the vast distances between each performer, the ensemble was keenly precise.

A suite of movements from Handel's "Water Music" lent itself well to transcription, since brass instruments figured predominantly in the composer's original orchestration. The resultant sound was rich and full, and subtle variations in dynamics and timbre kept the piece vibrant and interesting.

Bach Fugues Dazzling. By far the most virtuosic of these transcriptions, from the perspective of both execution and arrangement, were the two organ works by J S Bach, the Toccata and Fugue in D minor and the "Little" Fugue in G minor. The former work was particularly dazzling. Themes were split and tossed with incredible rapidity from player to player. Through all this activity, the piece retained its cohesiveness and hinted strongly at Bach's original timbral changes.

In addition to having virtuosic abilities of the highest order, these men also have a flair for theatrics. This was no more evident than in the arrangements of songs by Fats Waller ("Lookin' Good and Feelin' Bad," "Lounging at the Waldorf," and "Handful of Keys") and a drastically abridged version of Bizet's "Carmen." The performance of the latter included minimal but effective costuming and lighting.

The style of performance of these two pieces brings up an interesting and important point. One may well wonder at the propriety of such antics in the context of a concert of "serious" music. The sight of five men in tuxes and tails cavorting around the McCarter stage or playing the "Love Duet" from "Carmen" while wearing hats and wigs may seem too stark a departure from standard concert demeanor for the tastes of some.

But of what use is music if it is not enjoyable? The theatrics and jovial commentaries between works served to enlighten the audience as to the true nature of the music — the raw energy of jazz and the exaggerated sentimentality of grand opera. For being radical enough to incorporate these elements into their performances, these men are to be, and were, resoundingly applauded. They hold fast with great enthusiasm to their creed, as stated by tubaist Charles Daellenbach (and quoted in the program notes): "We believe it is our responsibility to bring the audience to the music rather than the music to the audience."

Bravo! The Canadian Brass proves, beyond a douht, that musical artistry can rest comfortably on the funny bone.

Important Contest Lies Ahead for Princeton Basketball Team; It Must Play Nationally-Ranked St. John's Away This Saturday

When the season began almost three weeks ago for the Princeton basketball team, it walloped Bucknell by 30 points, but discovered three days later it was not ready for bigger conquests. The Tigers lost to Rutgers in New Brunswick.

At the Carrier Classic earlier this month, the Orange and Black got by Boston University in overtime, but could not handle Syracuse in the tournament finals the following evening. The Orangemen whipped ninth-ranked Houston this past weekend for their sixth victory in six games.

The third and probably the biggest challenge of the season will present itself this Saturday, when coach Pete Carril and his players travel to Long Island to take on St John's. The Orange and Black is riding a modest two-game win streak, with a 69-54 victory over Fordham a week ago Tuesday, and a 69-49 defeat of Delaware last Saturday in Newark.

The Redmen, ranked 12th nationally, have yet to lose a contest this season in seven outings. Last Saturday night they pounded winless Niagara, 88-53. They are led by several veteran players including forward David Russell, Chris Mullin, Bill Wennington and Bill Goodwin.

Carril's squads have always given the usually more talented St. John's teams fits, as their coach Lou Carnesecca would be the first to admit. A year ago in Jadwin, the contest went down to the final two minutes, before the Redmen pulled away to a 42-37 triumph. Two years ago, the Tigers pulled off a one-point upset in Jamaica.

Carnesecca is sure to remind his players about that contest, so it is very doubtful St. John's will be taking Princeton too lightly this time around. A Princeton win would be an upset of major proportions, and doesn't seem in the cards this time around.

Blue Hens Roasted. It is indeed a pleasure to see Princeton, which is at such a disadvantage against teams like Delaware on the football field, turn the tables on the basketball court.

Last weekend's contest was as much of a rout in Princeton's favor as the football games have been in Delaware's. Carril cleared his bench for the first time this season, giving everybody a little playing time.

It took the Blue Hens four and a half minutes just to score their first points, as the Orange and Black jumped out to a 7-0 lead. The home team pulled to within four, 14-10, with 9:03 remaining, but then could manage only six more points before the intermission.

The Tigers, meanwhile scored 15 out of the next 17 points, to pull away to a 33-16 margin at halftime. They continued their hot shooting from the Fordham contest, hitting 15 of 23 shots in the first half, and 14 of 26 in the second.

Their foul shooting, however, fell off considerably to an even .500 on 11 of 22 from the charity stripe.

Carril, who had been worried his players would not take Delaware seriously enough after Fordham, was pleased with what he saw, including the play of his reserves.

"The subs didn't even play like subs," he marveled. "I guess my teaching is paying off."

Again, the Tigers had a balanced attack with Craig Robinson's 13 points tops. This enabled him to tie Jim Brangan's career total of 1,062, and place him 13th on the all-time Princeton scoring list. Along the way, he passed Armond Hill's total of 1057. He'll pass Art Hyland (1,064) and Bob Roma (1,076) next.

The best thing for Robinson, however, is that others are capable of scoring too this season, taking some of the pressure off. Gordon Enderle, improved tremendously this winter, had 11, Rich Simkus, 10, and Kevin Mullen, 10. John Smyth finished with 9. In addition to five for seven shooting, Simkus had six rebounds and four assists. His troubles last year seem well behind him.

Rich Simkus
His Troubles Behind Him

Swan Song for Fordham? With all the topflight basketball competition within an hour's drive of the campus here, Princeton officials must be asking themselves why a team like Fordham is on the schedule.

In fact, after the Rams schoolyard performance a week ago Tuesday, don't be surprised if they are eased out as an opponent next year. The name of the game is basketball, but the boys from the Bronx prefer rugby.

Robinson finally had had enough with about three minutes left in the contest. "Almost the whole game," he commented, " they were going for shots to the groin, shots to the throat. When you would dive for the ball, they'd step on your hands."

When Robinson retaliated by throwing an elbow at Fordham's Don McCormick, he was ejected from the game, the first time that has happened in his four-year career here.

Carril, ever the diplomat, refused to comment, saying, "My thoughts are not for the edification of the public."

Here's an oddity ... When the Dallas Cowboys won the Super Bowl a few years ago, they were led by two players who had not been primarily football men ... The great receiver, Bob Hayes, was primarily a track man in college -- and defensive star Cornell Green had not even played football at all in college, but had played only basketball.

What's the record for one team going to the same post-season bowl game the most consecutive years? ... The record is held by Texas which went to the same bowl -- the Cotton Bowl -- for six straight years, 1969 thru 1974.

Here's a surprising fact about sports on television ... It's easy to guess that the Super Bowl and World Series rank first and second in attracting the most TV sports viewers -- but which sports event do you think got the third highest number of viewers in TV sports history ... The answer, according to a recently published all-time TV report, is the Billie Jean King -- Bobby Riggs tennis match of 1973, which has beaten everything in total viewers except the Super Bowl and World Series.

Hockey Team Hopes to Continue Superb Play Against Harvard This Saturday in Cambridge

It's hard to remember when such a high degree of satisfaction existed the last time the Princeton hockey team split a pair of games in its two most recent outings.

The positive feelings abound, because the Tigers have shaken loose from the sloppy play that characterized their performances against Maine and Northeastern. They are on a roll at the moment, playing solid hockey both offensively and defensively, and demonstrating that the impressive 4-2 triumph over Boston College was not a mistake. The goals are coming in bunches and the defense has suddenly tightened up, all but eliminating costly errors.

Last Wednesday evening the Tigers put on a truly inspired performance, but ultimately lost to a powerful Providence team, 5-4, in sudden death overtime. The heartbreaking loss in no way diminished the fine effort by coach Jim Higgins' skaters.

Obviously, it didn't break their spirit either. Saturday, they traveled to New Haven and dumped Yale, 5-1, avenging a 6-3 defeat in Baker Rink three weeks ago. The contest was almost a complete reversal of the one here with the Tigers in command, after breaking a 1-1 tie in the first period.

Tigers Lead League. The unexpected outcome has the Tigers on top in the Ivy League at the moment with a 2-1 record, pending the outcome of the Harvard-Brown game this Wednesday night. Princeton is 4-4 overall, and has not had a better start since the 1954-55 season, when it was 5-3 through its first eight games. It has been 4-4 a few other seasons.

One of the reasons for the early-season success has been the fine play of many of the freshman members on the team. Eight of them have made it into the scoring column so far, with Bill Brady and Tim Oshier leading the way.

On Wednesday night, the Orange and Black will have a good shot at going over the .500 mark when it plays Union College, beginning at 7:30 in

Ron Dennis
ECAC Player of the Week

Baker Rink. A Division II team, Union was 3-3 through games last Saturday.

This Saturday, the Tigers will face another big challenge when they meet Harvard in Cambridge. The Crimson won its first five games, beating opponents such as New Hampshire, Boston University and RPI, before losing 3-1 to Cornell at Ithaca in a game marred by 42 minutes in penalties. The Cantabs are led by the Fusco brothers, Mark, a two-time all-American, and Scott.

Big Night in New Haven. If the Elis thought all they had to do was show up to claim their second victory over Princeton, they were mistaken. Paul Matthews opened the scoring for The Tigers when he knocked in the rebound of a slap shot by freshman Mike Donato from the left point at 6:30 of the first period. The Elis tied the score some nine minutes later on a two-on-one break with Bob Brooke beating goalie Ron Dennis.

However, the Orange and Black regained the lead just 27 seconds later. Brady scored on another rebound of a shot by Jim Matthews.

Chuck Huggins, Princeton's leading scorer with seven goals, got the only score of the second period, as Princeton increased its lead to 3-1. He tallied at the 15:09 mark, assisted by Rick Valdarchi and Donato. The Bulldogs came out shooting in the third period, firing a variety of shots at Dennis, but he proved equal to the task, making 18 of his 39 saves during the final 20 minutes.

Huggins added his second goal with about four minutes left, assisted by Brady and Rob Scheuer, and Tom Shustarich added the finishing touch with a power play goal with 59 seconds left.

While Dennis was called upon to make 38 saves, Princeton fired just 26 shots at Yale goalie Ted Lowe. The Tigers most impressive statistic, however, came in penalties. They committed just three, by far their lowest number this season. The Elis had eight.

Providence Prevails. It's games like this one that keep Princeton hockey fans coming back to Baker Rink year after year, despite the team's losing seasons.

This contest went into the record books as a loss, but the word is rendered almost meaningless by the Tigers superb effort. They played the Friars, who already had 15 games behind them and a 12-3 mark to show for it, dead even for three exciting periods.

Well, almost even — several times Providence appeared to be on a power play, when both teams were skating five on aside. The Friars are nationally ranked, and they demonstrated why with their superb passing and strong rushes down the ice toward Dennis, unleashing 45 shots

Overmatched on talent, the Orange and Black made up for the discrepancy in hustle, and never let up through more than 60 minutes of hockey.

Stacked with future NHL players, Providence opened strong, pressuring Princeton from the opening face-off. However, it took more than 10 minutes before they managed to beat Dennis for the first time. He failed to cover the rebound of a hard shot from the right side, and a Providence player jammed the puck by him

Five minutes later, a Friar defenseman made it 2-0 on a slap shot from the top of the face-off circle. Dennis was screened out on the play

The second period belonged to the Tigers, and they got going on a two-man advantage. Paul Matthews' shot was blocked by goalie Mario Proulx, but the rebound went directly to wing Tom Daccord 15 feet out on the left side, and he slapped the puck in. It was the first goal of the season for the sophomore right wing, the leading scorer on the jayvees last year, and his first of three of the night

Princeton tied the score a little over three minutes later

Tiger Basketball

His revenge was sweet, however, as the Orange and Black blew apart a team that had beaten it by two points a year ago, and three points in triple overtime two years ago. Fordham won the battle, but lost the war.

The Rams gave up three inches in height per man, and early on Princeton began to hit shots from in close with regularity, canning 10 of 14 shots in the first half, and 20 of 29 overall. It will be a long while before they shoot 67 per cent from the field again.

The Tigers also made Fordham pay dearly for almost every one of its 28 personal fouls, sinking 29 of 35 attempts. They may have had to take their lumps, but several Princeton players made them worthwhile.

Center Rich Simkus played his best game to date, hitting 6 of 8 from the floor, and adding four free throws for 16 points. Gordon Enderle also had 16, Robinson, 18, and John Smyth 15, aiding by nine of 10 from the foul line. Kevin Mullen almost became the fifth man in double figures for the Tigers with nine points.

The Rams stayed even with Princeton for the first few minutes, but the Tigers broke a 12-12 tie and steadily pulled away. They owned a 10-point lead at the half, 31-21, and increased that steadily in the second half.

The visitors stayed in contention for the first four minutes after the intermission, but then went more than eight minutes without a field goal.

The last five minutes on the game clock took nearly 20-25 to play, as both teams paraded to the foul line. It was basketball at its worst, but at least the Tigers have something to show for it.

Perhaps, the major disappointment of the evening was the small (2,500) crowd that showed up for the contest. The most noise throughout the evening came from a hundred or so vocal Fordham fans, whose loyalty was rivaled only by their lack of couth

Princeton Hockey

Defenseman Mike Boyles hit Ed Lee with a pass at the Providence blue line, and he skated to within 25 feet and lofted a soft wrist shot into the upper righthand corner of the net, past the partially screened Proulx

---

The Tigers took a 3-2 lead in another three minutes, converting a three-on-one opportunity into a nicely-executed goal. Lee got control of the puck in the Providence zone, passed to Paul Matthews, who fed a wide open Daccord in front of the net. He got just enough of his stick on the puck to slide it in.

The Friars came back to tie the contest at 3-3 with four minutes left, aided by Dennis. He was charged with a slashing penalty at 15:43, and less than a minute later, with Providence skating four against three, a hard slap shot from the left circle sent the puck through Dennis' pads.

The teams traded goals in the third period, the Friars taking a 4-3 lead when three Princeton players left the puck behind deep in their own zone Dennis was beaten on a low hard shot to the corner

---

Daccord completed his hat trick at the 8:53 mark, flipping the puck off a Providence defenseman, and into the net past Proulx. Tied at four apiece, neither team could score again before time ran out. Providence had several chances near the end, but a swarming Princeton defense, just managed to knock the puck away at the last moment. The Tigers had a couple of good shots of their own in the final 90 seconds.

The 10-minute overtime lasted just two minutes and 20 seconds, before the Friar's Steve Rooney dove toward the goal and just managed to deflect a centering pass by Dennis for the winning score.

Daccord was named ECAC Divison I rookie of the week for his performance, and Dennis copped ECAC player of the week honors for his efforts against both Providence and Yale.

WOMEN SKATERS WIN 2

Raise Record to 4-1. Princeton women's hockey team chalked up another pair of victories last weekend, defeating Yale, 5-0, on Saturday, and Hohomock Hockey Club, 6-2, on Sunday.

In doing so, the Tigers raised their Ivy league mark to, 2-0, and their overall mark to 4-1

Against the Elis, the women were somewhat slow in getting started, scoring just one goal in each of the first two periods Yale's goalie Betsy Mason, also came up with many fine saves to prevent further scoring

Captain Julie Wallace got the Tigers off to a 1-0 lead in the first period, deflecting a shot by Kathy Brewer from the right point into the net The second period goal came off the stick of freshman wing Amanda Cluett at 11:07 Laura Halldorson and Anne Hoenicke picked up assists.

Sue McGilvray made it 3-0 three minutes into the third period, taking a perfect lead pass from Wallace and scoring A few minutes later Patty Kazmaier skated the length of the ice around four Yale players and whipped in the fourth goal.

Halldorson scored the final goal of the game at 8:28. Beck Potter needed to make only 12 saves to record her second shutout of the season.

The following day Princeton again got off to a lethargic start, and fell behind Hobomock, 1-0, in the first period. However, Wallace and McGilvray combined to tie the game at 1-1, before the period ended.

Syrena Carlbom connected on a pass from Elliott Ammidon in front of the net on a power play just 20 seconds into the second period to give the Orange and Black a 2-1 lead. Just 11 seconds later Halldorson tapped home a rebound of a Kelly O'Dell slapshot to make it 3-1.

Carlbom, O'Dell and sophomore Calista Herndon added goals in the second period. Princeton's next game will be Friday, January 7 at 7:30 in Baker Rink against Brown.

HUN RELYS ON PINS

For Impressive Mat Start. "The key to our success has been a lot of pins," observed Hun wrestling coach Dave Faus, this week, after his team got off to an impressive 3-0 start.

Hun gained seven falls in twelve bouts to rout Pingry, 42-25, on Friday and began the week with a double win in a triangular meet with Admiral Farragut and Rutgers Prep. Hun demolished Farragut, 52-18, getting seven pins again, and outlasted Rutgers, 33-31, in the opening match.

"I'm pleased with our start," said Faus. "If we can hang on to this pinning thing we'll be in great shape." Hun will be at New Hope High School this Wednesday where it expects to run its record to 4-0.

Dave Zimmer (112 pounds), Larry Falls (132) and Todd Lipani (155) have all registered three pins in their first three matches for Hun.

Co-captain Eric Gallin has two falls and a major decisioa at 119 pounds, while veteran Chris Black has a pair of falls in the 167-pound division.

"We're very green at 98 and 105 pounds," commented Faus. "The key is to get our lower to middle weights going: Zimmer, Gallin, (Bob) Scherr and Falls. "It we continue to get pins from them we'll be in great shape all year."

Zimmer Gets Hun Goiog. Against Pingry last week, after Pingry jumped to a 11-0 lead, Zimmer, the newcomer from Peddie, got Hun going with a 33-second pin over Robert Cleveland. Gallin followed with a pin in 3:50, and Falls flattened his opponent in 1:30.

PHS MAT TRI-CAPTAIN: Ralph Carnevale is one of three tri-captains on the PHS wrestling team which will open ils season Monday at Freehold. He is a senior.

Hun was just warming up. Pat Daly, wrestling in his first match for Hun this year after failing to make weight in the opening meet, decked Robert Green in 35 seconds in their 145-pound bout; Lipani and Black followed with pins in 4:27 and 2:27 and Hun heavyweight Yawan Kayali capped Hun's big day with a 40-second pin over Alex Cainla.

Against Admiral Farragut earlier, Hun rolled to a 40-0 lead before junior Joe Scandariato, wrestling in his first varsity match, was pinned in 1:35 in his 145-pound match Before that, Hun had received pins from Dan Zumbrum at 98 pounds, Zimmer, Gallin, Falls, and its 138-pounder Mickey Raad, plus a major 13-2 decision from Scherr at 126 pounds and a forfeit win for Warren Solomon at 105 pounds Hun added 12 more points on pins by Lipani and Black

In the opening match with Rutgers Prep, "we were a little bit nervous," recalled Faus. For the Raiders who had no pre-season scrimmages it marked their first time on the mat

Hun prevailed when it got pins from Zimmer, Falls and Lapani and two key forfeit wins at 138 pounds and heavy weight. Gallin posted an 8-1 decision for Hun's other three points

Rutgers scored four pins, a major 11-3 decision in the opening bout and an 11-5 decision at 167 pounds. When Hun freshman Nick Kydonous was pinned in 3:05 in his 185-pound match, Rutgers led, 31-27, when it forfeited the final bout and the match.

FIRST CONTESTS AHEAD

For PHS Court, Mat Teams. The 1982-83 season for the Princeton High School basketball and wrestling teams will begin this week.

The Little Tiger basketball team will open Friday evening at 8 in the Falcons' home gym in Hightstown. Peddie will have an edge in game experience, having played three games, including two in the Peddie School Invitational Tournament last week where it shaded Collegiate, 46-45, in the opening round before bowing to Dalton of New York, 65-49 in the semis.

Leland Merrill, new coach of the PHS wrestling team, will take his squad to Freehold High School for its first match. The hout will be held Monday evening with varsity matches starting at 8.

The Little Tigers have a full squad, but Merrill is making no prediction. Ken Stroman, expected to start at 122 pounds, has been sidelined with a fractured wrist. His place will be taken hy Evan Cohen.

More Ioteosity. After an initial scrimmage last week against Rancocas Valley High School -- PHS also scrimmaged New Brunswick Tuesday -- PHS coach Marv Trotman reported that he was satisfied with his team's performance. "Hopefully, we can build from that," he added.

"There was more intensity than we had last year. More togetherness. The kids were looking for each other -- something you don't always get at the first of the year There was a great more cohesiveness"

Two who will see a lot of action along with sure starters Terry Phox, Jerry Ingram, the team co-captains, and center Kyle Hayes, are Ken McKellar, and Keith Green. McKellar, remarked Trotman, can leap higher than any member on the team, and has been doing well. Green, a 6-1 sophomore, can play either guard or forward

Although Trotman hasn't seen Peddie play, he says that he views the opener as just having PHS go out and do the same things it had done well in practice. "I feel we're going to beat them," he predicted.

Added Trotman, "We haven't been 1-0 in a long time. They (Peddie) can't be any tougher than Franklin."

In previous years, PHS has opened its season against Franklin High, a Group 4 school. The Warriors were always big, always tough and as a result the Little Tigers began each year 0-1.

HUN REACHES FINALS

In Peddie Tournament. Favored Hun School is two-thirds of the way along in successfully defending its Peddie School Invitational Tournament title but the Raiders will have to wait until January 8 for the final piece to fall in place.

The championship game between Hun and Dalton (N.Y.), the two finalists in the eight-team event, scheduled for Sunday, was postponed because of the weekend snowstorm. Commenting on the affect of the postponement, Hun coach Bob Hendrickson said, "You never know. Maybe it will work out for both. Both teams were tired."

Hun had advanced to the finals by defeating Valley Forge Military Academy, 68-55, in the opening round, while Dalton was routing Lawrenceville, 70-31. In the semis, Hun caught fire in the second half, connecting on 75 percent of its shots (24-for-32) to defeat a fine Pennington team, 78-51. Dalton ousted host Peddie, 65-49.

In the consolation round, Lawrenceville stopped Collegiate, 65-52, and Valley Forge defeated Hill, 86-65.

In a game this week, Hun (2-0) will entertain Admiral Farragut this Wednesday at 4.

Hendrickson Pleased. In the Peddie Tourney, Hun lived up to its top-seeded billing. "I was pleased with the way we played," acknowledged Hendrickson. "Anytime you can walk away from both games fairly easily, you have to be pleased."

Up by three at the half against rival Pennington, Hun, said Hendrickson, "just got turned on" in the second half. "We played outstanding ball. We shot very well."

And it wan't hard to see where all the points were coming from. Senior guard Paul Franzoni poured in 27 points and forward Sean Couch, the post-graduate student from JFK High School in the Bronx, hit for 28, as each had 13 field goals.

In outscoring the entire Pennington team, Franzoni and Couch both worked hard inside and outside for their shots, Hendrickson said. Andrew Marlatt and Paul Pintella combined for 14 more Hun points. It was Pennington's first lost in four games.

Franzoni was 13-for-21 from the floor while Couch was a torrid 13-for-18. "When you shoot like that, it's going to be tough for another team to beat you," said Hendrickson. As a team, Hun shot 37 for 58.

Big "D" for Marlatt. One of the keys to opening win over Valley Forge, in Hendrickson's view, was the fine defensive play by Andrew Marlatt on the losers's 6-7 center Bob Merklinger. For three periods, Marlatt held Merklinger to one point. He finished the game with nine.

In the next round, Merklinger, Hendrickson pointed out, exploded for 36 points in the 82-65 rout of Hill. Another key was the shooting of Couch and Franzoni again (24 for Couch, 17 for Franzoni).

But in the end the game was decided on the foul line where Hun had 34 shots and sank 20. (That's an area we're going to have to work on," agreed Hendrickson). VFMA, in turn only went to the free-throw line 15 times and converted on nine.

After taking a 23-22 lead at the intermission, Hun scored the first nine points of the second half -- Couch and Franzoni combining for seven -- to take a 10 point lead and the losers were never able to recover. Derek Hutchinson, who kept Valley forge in contention with his long shots, led the losers with 22 points
